CHUCK McCRACKEN

Decision to die: 'life is sheer agony'

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Chuck McCracken unplugged himself from his kidney dialysis machine last week because he says the life-saving treatment was "sheer agony for me."

Now he is waiting to die.

His wife is resigned to his decision. His children are confused. He figures he has less than two weeks to live.

He says that each day he grows weaker. He sits at home, passing the time talking to friends and family.

"Uremic poisoning causes a loss of strength," he said candidly in a telephone interview Tuesday. "I look forward to a pleasant death, not painful, not traumatic. I'll go peacefully and quietly."

He adds, "I don't believe a person should commit suicide, but to be kept alive by doctors is not quite humane. A person has a right to choose between life and death."

McCracken, 36, went off dialysis July 22. He had been taking the treatments — in which a machine filters the wastes from his blood — for three months after he suffered kidney failure.

He had to leave his job as a television repairman eight years ago when he lost his vision. He also has diabetes and a diseased thyroid gland. He suffered leg paralysis last March.

"During the (dialysis) treatment my blood pressure would suddenly drop, and I wouldn't be able to breathe," McCracken said. "They would raise my legs above my head to help me recover and that was sheer agony for me. It was more than I wanted to bear."

McCracken says that once he had made the decision to die the "world lifted from my shoulders. I have felt extreme inner peace."

Barbara McCracken says she is resigned to her husband's decision. But she says the McCracken's four young children — his by an earlier marriage — "don't quite understand the full impact of it yet."

McCracken has already made his funeral arrangements: "It's one less thing my wife will have to worry about when I'm gone," he says.

Mrs. McCracken — who works at the General Telephone Co. — has supported the family since her husband's paralysis.

McCracken's physician, Dr. Siegmund Teichman, says, "When a patient leaves dialysis, it is usually a death sentence. But he was very depressed. He was unable to do more than go back and forth from the treatments here and his home. So, the life he faced was a very limited one."

Teichnan said mcCracken had "less than a 30 per cent chance of living for one year" if he had stayed with dialysis.

The doctor said McCracken has signed a release which testifies that he was of sound mind when he made his decision to die.

Chino YRS issue off the ballot

Bow to voice of community

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Chino school trustees today are no closer to ending the bickering over the year-round school program than they were a week ago.

Bowing to the community, board members Tuesday night decided to abandon plans to place the YRS issue before the voters on Nov. 4.

Trustees had unanimously favored settling the controversy on the November ballot, after an unexpected motion by Pete VanderPoel at last week's meeting.

But after a two-hour public hearing Tuesday in which the majority of citizens urged the board not to place the YRS issue on the same ballot with an $8.5 million bond vote, trustees agreed.

"After hearing the discussion, it would be a rather poor move putting it on the Nov. 4 ballot," said trustee Lyle Briggs who also moved to table a resolution of intent.

There was some confusion regarding wording of the resolution, and Briggs said the board needed more time to clearly define it. Board member Roy Ward said the bond issue already on the ballot is a separate matter but other trustees did not agree.

Augustine Tapia, board president, indicated the year-round issue could be placed on the March, 1976 ballot which is also a Chino municipal election.

No action was taken, however, as trustees tabled any move on the YRS election.

An informal vote taken in the packed board room during the hearing showed that 23 persons opposed placing it on the November ballot, against 17 who favored it.

Residents generally said the resolution was confusing, and they were unsure what would happen in case voters approved or disapproved of YRS.

A county counsel's opinion presented by Supt. Royce Lapp indicated a "yes" vote for YRS would make the program mandatory for all students, and a "no" vote would terminate the plan and revert the district back to the nine-month traditional program.

However, the resolution of intent said "some" students would be required to enroll in YRS, as a result of a "yes" vote.

Several citizens said this sounded

MEETING AT THE TOP

Ford confers with Brezhnev

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — President Ford and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev held a 2¼-hour mini-summit meeting today and both men declared progress had been made on strategic arms talks and the Middle East.

The two leaders reported the progress without giving specific details at a joint impromptu news conference outside the American ambassador's residence following the session.

Brezhnev told Ford: "I am very pleased" as the two men shook hands. Ford then told newsmen the meeting, which ran 15 minutes overtime, "was very constructive, very friendly and very businesslike."

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the session covered the strategic arms limitation talks, the Middle East and bilateral matters.

Ford said progress had been made and added: "I am sure when we meet again Saturday there will be further progress."

The Middle East was not scheduled as part of today's discussions, but officials said the talks went so well that the Arab-Israeli conflict was raised. However, a more detailed exploration of the Middle East will be held Saturday, U.S. officials said.

Both men were asked if the European Security Conference they are attending would add significantly to world peace.

The Soviet leader answered that "I want peace and tranquility to reign in Europe. I want all nations to live in peace and not interfere in each others affairs."

Asked again if the agreement to be signed Friday would accomplish that goal, Brezhnev answered: "I think so, yes."

The question of interference in each others's affairs had plagued the preliminary work of the conference. The United States had demanded the agreement call for more civil liberties for the people of Eastern Europe.

Ford didn't allude to the issue of civil rights in his answer, saying: "I believe overall that peace in the world" will be helped by the agreement.

Brezhnev, Ford, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger held the face-to-face talks at the U.S. ambassador's red-brick residence here where the President is staying.

Later, Ford and Greek Prime Minister Constantine Caramanlis had a luncheon meeting that lasted nearly an hour and a half.

"We had a very friendly, very deep discussion," Ford later told reporters, saying the two men and their advisers had discussed the Cyprus dispute involving Greece and Turkey, the situation in the Mediterranean and unspecified bilateral matters.

The President, who has a Thursday breakfast scheduled with Caramanlis' Turkish counterpart, Suleyman Demirel, said he "looks forward to continue working with Greece" on matters of mutual interest.

McGovern releases report

Plots by CIA to kill him told by Castro

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern released today a summary of evidence compiled by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro purporting to outline 24 Central Intelligence Agency-inspired plots on the lives of Castro and other Cuban leaders.

"I have no way to verify these allegations," McGovern said in a statement announcing that he was turning over all the material furnished by Castro to the Senate Intelligence Committee.

If the allegations are true, McGovern said, "the CIA has engaged in the most shocking, murderous and un-American behavior against the leaders of a neighboring state."

The summary released by McGovern described 24 incidents from mid-1960 to March 1971. According to the information compiled by Castro, the 1971 incident involved a plan for an assassin to pose as a Venezuelan newsman covering Castro's 1971 visit to Chile.

However, the plan was aborted, according to Castro's evidence. Prior to 1971, the most recent incident cited was in 1967.

McGovern said that Castro's conclusions of CIA involvement in these plots "are apparently based on confessions and on circumstantial evidence."

However, McGovern added that "at the very least, prime Minister Castro has supplied important leads which must be pursued."

McGovern noted that U.S. public policy following the 1962 Cuban missile crisis was to discourage and prevent U.S.-based violence against the Castro regime. "We are forced to consider the possibility that those declarations mask the exact opposite," McGovern said.

"We must also consider the appalling prospect that the CIA was involved in assassination attempts in Cuba entirely on its own, and perhaps in direct defiance of higher authority."

McGovern said that the evidence had been supplied by Castro in response to a request made by McGovern when he met with the Cuban leader in May.

Leaders of world gather at summit

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — The biggest gathering of world leaders in 160 years opened today and Finnish President Urho Kekkonen called it "a day of joy and hope for Europe." But the British had doubts and the Greeks lashed out at the Turks.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson warned that "detente means little if not reflected in the daily lives of our people." And Greek Prime Minister Constantine Caramanlis said the principles of the super-summit — called the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe — were being violated by the Turkish occupation of part of Cyprus.

Kekkonen, whose neutral country is host for the session, told the assembled leaders of 32 other European countries plus the United States and Canada "that a new era in our mutual relations is dawning" and that "we have set out on a journey through detente to stability and enduring peace."

Wilson laid particular emphasis in his speech on the human rights section of the document to be signed here. That section was fought by the Communist Eastern bloc governments, which feared making concessions that might loosen control over their people.

But some of the heads of state who arrived Tuesday in this far northern capital of neutral Finland warned that it will all be for naught if the participating nations fail to demonstrate enough good will to implement the 30,000-word conference charter.

On this theme, President Ford said upon arrival that the United States will participate fully in the goal of winning a lasting peace in Europe. But he cautioned that the provisions of the Helsinki declaration "must be translated into policies of action."

Mental patient's case set

Joseph Clifton Carmoush, 73-year-old mental patient charged with murder, has been arraigned in Pomona Superior Court but his case was continued to Aug. 21 for his plea.

Carmoush, who lived in a La Puente convalescent home at the time of his arrest, was arraigned before Judge Charles S. Vogel who appointed two psychiatrists to examine him. The defendant is free on $25,000 bail.

Carmoush is accused of murdering Gilbert Roath, 42-year-old fellow patient in the La Puente convalescent home at 16222 Wegman Drive. Investigators said the men argued over the volume of a television set before Carmoush went to his room, returned with a war souvenir Japanese army rifle and shot Roath in the heart.

Since Carmoush's release on bail last month, he has been living with his sister in Long Beach.

6,000 employes in state agency

'Major portion' of workers in transportation face layoff

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"A major proportion" of the state Department of Transportation's 6,000 employes will have to be laid off beginning Jan. 1, a top Caltrans official told Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Painting a grim economic picture, Robert Best, chief deputy director of Caltrans, said a layoff plan would be readied in October, but he would announce the extent of the layoffs by the end of this week.

Brown was told during a twohour hearing Tuesday that projected gasoline tax revenues would barely permit present highway maintenance work.

"Highway construction costs are up 60 per cent over the past two years and maintenance costs are more than a third over the same period," said Best.

Robert Adams, Caltrans assistant director, added: "Revenues are going down and we're entering a period where we can no longer match federal funds."

The federal government requires states to allocate onequarter of the amount they give for highway projects. But, said Adams, with a freeze on in California on new highway projects, the state can no longer expect federal aid.

Best said Caltrans could not expect to receive funds from the state's Motor Vehicle Account after the next fiscal year because other state departments such as the California Highway Patrol and the Air Resources Board have priority for these funds.

Best said Caltrans' cash balance is expected to drop to $9 million by January, from $40 million at present. Just to keep highway maintenance projects going, he added, would require increasing the 7-cents-per-gallon gasoline tax by a penny immediately and by another penny in 1978 or 1979.

Following the briefing, Brown said: "I have to make some decisions and they may involve layoffs. But in any layoffs that may be necessitated, we're going to do everything we can to find jobs for those people in government."

However, he warned: "It's not enough to just take an ongoing program and pump more money into it just for the sake of keeping it alive. We have to find where best to put our limited dollars."

Sea World buys great white shark

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Visitors to Sea World aquatic park will soon be able to look down the jaws of a great white shark — and live to talk about it.

Sea World bought the 12-foot, 8-inch-long shark caught last week off Los Angeles.

Brian Hawthorne, owner of the boat that landed the shark, agreed to the sale Tuesday after Sea World scientists dissected the creature.

A Sea World spokesman said the terms were "mutually agreeable" but refused to disclose the price.

The shark will go on display this weekend, jaws open, in a 14-by-6 foot refrigerated display case.

Dr. Lanny Cornell, a Sea World scientist, said the shark "could easily take a human torso and swallow it."

Cornell and Sea World's Ray Keyes dissected the 1,400-pound monster late Monday night while marine specialists from Scripps Insititution of Oceanography looked on.

They removed a 305-pound liver and the remains of two man-sized harbor seals.

Internal organs from the giant female shark will be shared with other scientists, including at least one foreign country, said publicist Polly Rash.

"We've been getting calls from all over the world, asking for a lung or this or that," she said.

"In the next few months, we're going to learn more about the great white shark than we've ever known before."

Farm leader hopes to halt labor trouble

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Outbreaks of labor violence hopefully will be avoided in California fields if the state's new election board proves its impartiality quickly, the board's chairman says.

The Most Rev. Roger Mahony, auxiliary bishop of Fresno's Roman Catholic diocese, said Tuesday:

"I think the avoidance of violence will depend on how well we perform in the first few weeks. If growers and others can see we have a fair staff . . . I believe people will not despair and turn to violence."

Mahony, whose appointment has been criticized by some grower spokesmen, acknowledged that, otherwise, things could become "very difficult."

Last April Mahony, who has been secretary of a national bishops' committee on farm labor, first met the Democratic governor when Brown asked to meet with a group of bishops in his office.

Later Mahony was involved in negotiations on the law, which takes effect Aug. 28, allowing farmworkers to select which union, if any, they want to represent them.

Since the mid-1960s, Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers and the Teamsters Union have battled over who will represent the state's 240,000 farmworkers in the $6 billion agriculture industry.

The law, which grew out of negotiations in Brown's office, was enacted in hopes of bringing peace to the fields.

On Saturday, Brown appointed Mahony, subject to Senate confirmation, as chairman of the new state Agricultural Labor Relations Board overseeing elections.

"We have a lot of work to do in a short time. This law goes into effect at the height of the harvest season," the 39-year-old bishop told reporters Tuesday in Brown's office.

Mahony has been criticized by some grower spokesmen, who say he is pro-Chavez. The bishop denied a report he had once marched with Chavez and said:

"It never was my opinion workers should belong to one union over another. The question is, what union does the farmworker want to join? Does he want to join any union?"

In Brown's appointments

Women, minorities favored as judges

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Six of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s first nine judicial appointments are blacks, Mexican-Americans or women.

And Brown will stress youth, too, in his drive to shake up the judicial system and make it what he calls "more responsive."

"Obviously, in the judiciary there have been very few women and minorities relative to the numbers in society," the 37-year-old Democratic governor said in a recent interview.

Brown, who promised to appoint more women and minorities during his campaign last year, has named two women, two blacks, two Mexican-Americans and three white males to judgeships.

"We can't sustain that (ratio) for a variety of reasons, and that's unfortunate," Anthony Kline, Brown's legal affairs secretary, said Tuesday.

Mainly, he said, too few of the minorities and women who are practicing law haven't been doing it long enough. The requirement is 10 years to be considered for the Superior Court bench, five years for Municipal Court judges.

Brown's appointees so far have been in their 40s, 50s and 60s, and his upcoming appointments of municipal court judges will include many younger lawyers, Kline said.

Brown said that he had no quotas in mind — "I'm against quotas" — but has had one overriding point in screening applicants to fill the more than 70 judicial vacancies he faced.

California has 39 women judges, but no statistics are kept on the number by race.

Homosexuals' job issue dies quietly in L.A. council

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The issue of job discrimination against homosexuals has been quietly laid aside by Los Angeles city councilmen.

The council voted Tuesday — unanimously and without discussion — to receive and file without further action a proposed ordinance barring discrimination against employes on job applicants because of marital status or sexual orientation.

The ordinance was based on a motion last year by the late Councilman Robert Stevenson that would have made job discrimination against homosexuals illegal.

The issue became highly controversial after Police Chief Edward M. Davis told Stevenson he would resist any attempts to hire homosexuals as police officers, claiming such a hiring practice would "destroy both the morale and efficiency of the police department."

Assistant City Atty. John Rice said Tuesday, however, that the proposed ordinance would have been a council policy statement at most. Court decisions have already made it illegal to discriminate on sexual orientation or marital status alone, Rice said.

Wife offers innocent plea in arsenic poisoning case

SAN JOSE (AP) — A woman accused of lacing her husband's meals with arsenic until he became a "hopeless cripple" has pleaded innocent at her second arraignment.

Mary Davis, a 35-year-old mother of two, appeared in San Jose Municipal Court on Tuesday to enter her plea on one charge of administering poison with intent to kill a human being. The first case against her was dismissed July 18 for lack of sufficient evidence.

Santa Clara County Deputy Dist. Atty. Rod Braughton said he did not disclose all of the evidence against Mrs. Davis at the first preliminary hearing but expects to do so this time.

He said Mrs. Davis is accused of serving food containing arsenic to her husband, Alvin, 37, for about a year, causing him to lose 100 pounds and leaving him bound to a wheelchair for life.

"He can't walk and his hands are paralyzed. He's a hopeless cripple," Braughton said. "It appears to be a rather clever way of doing someone in without getting caught."

Mrs. Davis continued to live with her husband after her arrest until last week when he filed for divorce.

Detroit struggles through second night of riots

DETROIT (AP) — Young blacks set fires and smashed windows for the second straight night and vowed to renew their assault on a bar owned by a white man charged with the fatal shooting of a black teenager.

About 300 riot-equipped police advanced in military fashion Tuesday night behind wafting clouds of tear gas, pushing a crowd of several hundred out of a decaying business strip in northwest Detroit.

Police said 36 persons were arrested Tuesday night, bringing the two-day toll to 99.

The area, never fully recovered from the devastation of the 1967 Detroit riot, was quiet early today as the skirmishes diminished after midnight.

Some minor injuries were reported, but police said they had no idea how many persons were treated.

The massive police presence in the Livernois-Fenkell area was reestablished Tuesday after the mob ransacked Bob Bolton's Bar and attempted to burn it.

Andrew Chinarian, 39, owner of the bar, was charged earlier in the day with second-degree murder in Monday night's death of Obie Wynn, 18, who was shot in the back of the head.

The shooting immediately set off the disturbances and left the bar — already hated by local blacks because of alleged discrimination — as a prime target for Tuesday's crowd.

"They're going to burn it," several residents agreed as they eyeballed police.

Officers moved into the area in force after an appearance by Mayor Coleman Young, a black, failed to dissuade the crowd from the assault on Chinarian's bar.

About two hours later, officers ordered the crowd to disperse and were answered with a five-minute deluge of bottles and rocks. Then police moved forward, firing tear gas, to broaden their grip on the area and divide the crowd.

Later, five blocks away, windows were smashed in a score of stores, some fires were set and at least five Molotov cocktails were thrown. Police moved in, again using tear gas, to force scattered groups of youths out of the area.

A rock shattered the windshield of a fire truck, injuring one firefighter slightly.

Dozens of young blacks from the Neighborhood Youth Corps and neighborhood city halls urged the crowd to disperse.

Residents of the area complained that Chinarian should have been charged with first-degree murder and should not have been released on $500 bond. Some said he should be turned over to the mob.

"I just think it's a dirty deal that my son got shot in the back of the head," said the slain youth's mother, Shirley Wynn.

Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Donald Leonard ordered Chinarian to appear in court today for reevaluation of the bond.

Unemployment in Detroit is 23 per cent and many of those who gathered in the area Tuesday night said they were out of work. Some said joblessness was a prime cause of the disturbance.

"If this didn't kick it off, something else would," said one.

Armed robbers hit Ontario apartment, Upland dairy

Armed robbers forced their way into an Ontario apartment and held up an Upland dairy store Tuesday, taking nearly $300 in cash.

In the Upland area a man armed with a small handgun burst through the doors of the Arrow Dairy Store, 1661 W. Arrow Highway about 8 p.m. and took a small amount of cash from the register, according to West End sheriff's deputies.

Clerk Richard Ziebath told deputies he had just closed for the evening. The robber displayed the muzzle of a handgun from under his shirt and ordered Ziebath to take the money from the register, place it in a paper bag, and hand it over.

Ziebath said the man took the bag and money and fled down the railroad tracks in back of the dairy and jumped into what is believed to be a white sedan about a block away.

The gunman was described as a Caucasian, 5 feet 8, 150 pounds with medium brown hair. He was wearing a "V"-neck velour shirt and blue Levis.

IN ONTARIO, two men on the pretense of looking for a man named "Jerry" entered an apartment and at knifepoint, robbed a 22-year-old unemployed laborer Tuesday evening.

Steve John Maeder, 22, of 918 W. Holt Blvd., Apt. 7 told police that two men knocked on his apartment door about 4 p.m. and asked if a man named "Jerry" lived there. Maeder said "no," and the two men suddenly pushed their way into the apartment kitchen and struck him in the face. He said the next thing he knew one of the men grabbed a kitchen knife and pointed it at him.

The two men grabbed Maeder's wallet, containing a small amount of cash, and fled out the door.

Maeder described one of the men as a Caucasian, 25, 5 feet 11, 170 pounds, wearing a green "T"-shirt, beige pants and black boots. He had tattooes on both forearms. The second man, also a Caucasian about 23, 6 feet 1, and 145 pounds with frizzy hair tied back in a pony tail, was wearing a white "T"-shirt and blue Levis.

ONTARIO truck driver Gary Whitzel called police Tuesday reporting that burglars had broken into his home at 1892 E. Granada Court while he was away and stole a color television set, a watch, and a number of rings with a total value of $3,935.

Police investigating the burglary said the burglars gained entrance to the home by prying open a bedroom window. Whitzel told officers that the burglars took his 12-inch color portable television set, a digital watch and assorted diamond, ruby, turquoise, coral, and sapphire rings in a small jewelry box.

YRS vote reversal—

like the same program now in operation, in which YRS is optional, and students may enroll in the nine-month program.

"You want to have a special election for something you have right now," said Larry Kuhlman, a Chino parent.

Tapia explained the election would result in an endorsement for either the YRS or traditional system. Legally, the district could mandate YRS or traditional for every student depending on the vote, but the board would not dictate, Tapia added.

Several board members said they desired maintaining flexibility in the program. If YRS was approved, the emphasis would be on that system but a small traditional program might be operated.

Al McCombs, another board member, referred to the recent controversy over waiting lists in the present traditional program. If YRS passed in the election, the district would have the option of conducting a traditional program the way it wanted, he said (Some persons have complained that new students are given preference over continuing students in the nine-month plan.)

Gladys Briggs, president of Citizens for Improved Education (CIE), anti-year-round school group, said the election only will decide what the district already has been doing — giving new students their preference. "It's heads I win, tails you lose."

Several trustees said they wanted to end the YRS hassle. "As long as we've had this issue before us, we can't get down to educating our kids," said Tapia. Ward added that adults have been "rabble rousing" on YRS, and "kids are picking it up."

Some citizens favored the current optional system approved in April, and saw no need for an election now. "You already have been given a mandate," said Pat Curtis, a Magnolia Junior High teacher, referring to the optional plan favored at the April hearing. "You're wasting money putting it on a ballot."

McCombs said there have been "foul ups" with combination classes and not enough enrollment in some other classes, because the district has been trying to be "all things to all people." He indicated voters should decide which program to operate.

But Janet Sanford, a resident, asked if the district was calling an election "because a group of people are blasting you on YRS?"

And Mrs. Curtis said Mrs. Briggs and Fae Lamb, also of CIE, would find another problem to confront the district with, if YRS is resolved.

Ford will present a new plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration will present a new plan it hopes will get Congress to approve a resumption of U.S. arms sales to Turkey before leaving for a recess Friday, Sen. John Tower says.

The House voted last Thursday, 223 to 206, against a partial lifting of the arms embargo, which had been imposed by Congress because of Turkey's use of American weapons in its invasion and occupation of Cyprus.

LEARNS OF OUSTER

Gen. Yakubu Gowon, left, military ruler of oil-rich Nigeria, Kampala, is told by an aide Tuesday of his overthrow in a bloodless coup. Gowon said, "I have a clear conscience."

Mohammed takes command of Nigerian government

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Brig. Muritala Rufai Mohammed, a tough army officer who played a leading role in crushing Biafran rebels during the Nigerian civil war, emerged today as the new leader of Africa's largest and richest nation.

The appointment of Mohammed, a 38-year-old Moslem northerner, was announced over Radio Nigeria on Tuesday night some 14 hours after Nigerians first learned that Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon had been deposed in a bloodless coup while attending an African summit in Kampala, Uganda.

The government ordered all Nigerians to return to work. The capital city of Lagos, which appeared virtually deserted on Tuesday, was rapidly returning to normal.

In Kampala, Gowon said at a news conference that he accepted the coup against him and pledged "all my loyalty" to the new government. He urged Nigerians to give the same support to the new government that they gave him for nine years.

"As a Nigerian, am prepared to serve my country in any capacity which my country may consider appropriate," he said, adding that he is a "professional soldier."

Gowon gave no hint of his personal plans — whether he intended to leave Kampala shortly and where he would go. "All the world's a stage," he said, quoting Shakespeare, "and all the men and women merely players. Each has his exits and entrances."

The Organization of African Unity summit sessions continued with low-level Nigerian participation.

Democrats support runoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leaders agreed today to support a runoff election to break the deadlock over the contested New Hampshire seat.

Statehouse sources in Concord, meanwhile, said a special election probably will be held Sept. 9.

"We'll abide by it," Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said of the request of John A. Durkin, the Democratic contender, to declare the seat vacant.

Durkin announced late Tuesday that he had reversed himself and now favored a runoff to settle whether he or his Republican opponent, Louis C. Wyman, should be New Hampshire's new junior senator.

Prof dresses for occasion

This is the real Wild West

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The students weren't surprised when the cowpoke moseyed into the classroom wearing sixshooters. It was just an average day in a course they call "Cowboys and Indians."

Technically, the title of the senior level course at the University of Florida is: "History of Trans-Mississippi West 1830-1890."

But Dr. Julian Pleasants, remembering times he spent cheering Hopalong Cassidy down the silver screen's dusty trail, does what he can to bring it to life. Sometimes, he wears cowboy clothes.

The course deals with what Pleasants believes to be the most significant era in the nation's development. But he said there are so many misconceptions of the Wild West that he has to unteach as much material as he teaches.

"The mythical cowboys spawned by legends and TV and movies epitomize the type man most Americans like to believe they are — John Wayne-types who are quick to clobber the bad guys and even quicker to bow to a pretty lady," Pleasants said.

Pretty ladies like Belle Starr?

"She was actually sort of a den mother to a bunch of outlaws," Pleasants said. "She was little more than a leatherfaced miscreant. In fact, all those 'Miss Kitty' types looked in real life as if they'd crawled out of a cactus patch into a pig pen."

The professor says the glamorized Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, whose real names were George Leroy Parker and Harry Longbaugh, were two unglamorous train robbers.

"They were so tame and likeable the railroad people offered Butch a job as a freight guard to keep him off the tracks so they wouldn't have to shoot him," Pleasants said. "Butch and Sundance likely never killed anyone in their lives. Even when being pursued, they'd shoot the horses instead of the men chasing them."

Dr. Julian Pleasants, history professor at the University of Florida, dramatizes his course on the wild west with the classic stance of the gunfighter. He says he has to unteach as much material as he teaches to puncture misconceptions spawned by legend, movies and television programs.

Law test; she'll open a brothel for women too

LODI (AP) — A housewife here wants to turn 'the oldest profession' on its ear by opening a house of prostitution — for women.

Anne Meyers, a mother of four, has applied for a business license in this agricultural town 10 miles north of Stockton in hopes of opening a male bordello atop of a beer outlet operated by her and her husband.

But unlike most of her illegal counterparts, Mrs. Meyers wouldn't open just any brothel. "It would have to be done first class. It would have to be proper," she said in an interview Monday.

Mrs. Meyers admits she is not as interested in opening a house of prostitution for the ladies as she is in striking a blow against laws she says discriminate against women.

"I read an article in a newspaper July 17 from Brockston, Mass. entitled 'Male Prostitution No Crime' where a judge ruled that it was illegal for females to be prostitutes, but not for males since the law didn't mention them," she said.

"Really, what I'm doing this for is to test the law. I've talked to men and women about this and their all angry about inequality."

Mrs. Meyers says principle and money figure in her motives.

"Most people ask me if I would go through with it if I got the business license, and the answer is that I, naturally, would," she said. "I'm a business woman and I think a venture like this would be very profitable."

But Lodi City Atty. Robert Mullen doesn't believe Mrs. Meyers will get her business license.

"We can't grant it. We've got a (state) penal code section that says any person who engages in prostitution is breaking the law, and we don't license illegal businesses," he said.

"Besides, we could be subject to a suit by women if we allowed male prostitutes. What's good for the gander is good for goose, I guess."

Estates pile up

SACRAMENTO (AP) — John Gosland died recently in San Diego County leaving an estate of $50,642 which no one has claimed, the state controller's office reported Monday.

It was the same with William J. Lawrence of Los Angeles County, $35,271, and Edgar Albin Sahm of Alameda County, $22,092.

State Controller Kenneth Cory said they are among 378 persons whose unclaimed estates were received by the state during May and June. The total value is $744,329. In addition, the state received 704 items of abandoned property valued at $1.18 million.

Cory said estates permanently become state property if unclaimed after five years.

Top-ranking black urges industry to help jobless

ATLANTA (AP) — While the top-ranking black in the Ford administration argued that new jobs must come from revived private industry, others at the Urban League convention called for decisive government action to help the unemployed.

"The President firmly believes, as do I, that the permanent solution to high unemployment must come through full production in the private sector," Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. told delegates to the league's convention Monday.

But Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., called for a $10 billion federal program to create one million new jobs. And Dr. Vivian W. Henderson, president of mostly black Clark College in Atlanta, proposed an additional $20 billion tax cut for low and middle-income groups.

Coleman, appointed in March, said, "It is neither possible nor sensible for the government to spend its way into full employment.

"It costs an estimated $20,000 a year to create a public job, even though the maximum earnings would be less than $10,000.

Brooke said his proposal to create one million jobs "would cause the creation of approximately one million more jobs — about 120,000 in government and 880,000 in the private sector — a total of two million jobs in all.

"The $10 billion cost would be offset by a saving of at least $1 billion in unemployment benefits and by an additional $4 billion in federal tax revenues."

Brooke, also black, said while the unemployment rate for whites is 7.5 per cent, the official unemployment rate for blacks is 13.5 per cent, "but it is estimated that the true level of unemployment among blacks is a devastating 25.8 per cent."

Henderson, an economist, said the $20 billion tax cut he proposed would stimulate consumer spending.

Five persons injured in valley accidents

Traffic accidents in Pomona, Ontario and the Mt. Baldy area Tuesday injured five persons, authorities reported.

Three of those hurt were involved in a hit-run accident in Pomona, where an unidentified driver drove away after running into the rear of a car containing the victims at Holt Avenue east of Indian Hill Boulevard.

Carol Ann Gregory, 33, 2227 Farringdon Ave., said she was stopped, waiting to make a left turn when her car was struck. Besides herself, those injured were Vicky Lynn Gregory, 4, and Cindy Stewart, 6. Both were released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Another passenger, 16-year-old Terricia Wellmaker, 974 Glen Eagles Ave., Pomona, did not require medical attention at the hospital.

A Pomona man suffered a broken leg when his motorcycle slid out from under him as he rode south on Mt. Baldy Road near Falls Road, highway patrolmen said.

Benjamin Ziegler, 25, 2864 Kelly Lane, was admitted to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland, where his condition today was reported good.

Ziegler was rounding a curve when his cycle slid from beneath him and fell in the northbound lane, they reported.

A 32-year-old Ontario woman was injured when her car suddenly veered off of Fith Street and crashed into the rear of a parked pickup truck, police said. The impact pushed the pickup truck into another vehicle parked in front of it, officers reported.

Grace Ann Milazzo of 4807 Howard St., Ontario, was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital for treatment of minor injuries and later released.

YOUNG FARMER AND FRIEND

Emile Allen, 15, of La Verne hugs his prize ram after judges awarded the animal a "supreme breed" classification at the Orange County fair recently. The 275-pound Suffolk was judged best of show in breeding stock. Emile is a member of the Pomona Valley 4-H Club.

Youth, 18, faces trial as adult in attack on police

A youth who turned 18 the day after a violent attack by four youths on two La Verne policemen was arrested as an adult Tuesday while being confined in Juvenile Hall, already charged with participation in the incident.

Police today identified him as Edward Cruz Beltran of 2802 I St., La Verne. He was booked at the county jail on suspicion of burglary and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon.

Beltran was one of four teen-age youths arrested Sunday night after officers Chris Sullivan and John Ortega were attacked by youths they pursued into a garden after a jewelry store window was broken and looted a half a block from the police station.

Both officers were injured to the extent that neither will be able to return to duty for between 10 to 14 days, and then only after re-examination by a physician.

Beltran was one of the youths overpowered in the battle at 2342 D St. The others, 17, 14 and 13, remained in Juvenile Hall, officers said. They were not identified.

Police planned to request a complaint against Beltran from district attorney's deputies today in an effort to prosecute him as an adult in the beating of the two officers.

Death of CIW inmate under investigation

The death of a 24-year-old inmate of the California Institution for Women on Sunday is under investigation by the San Bernardino County Coroner's Office and CIW authorities.

Norma Everhart of Tulare County, according to prison officials, was found dead in her room at the prison late Sunday by correctional officers making routine bed checks. The cause of Miss Everhart's death was not immediately known and an autopsy and toxicology tests have been ordered by the coroner's office.

Prison authorities said that an aerosol can was found in the woman's room, but it could not be determined if the woman had been sniffing it before her death until an autopsy had been performed and other tests made.

Miss Everhart had been committed to CIW as a civil addict pending the outcome of a trial for robbery. She was arrested in Tulare County in connection with a robbery there. She was accepted for treatment in the CIW civil addict program on July 11.

BIRTHDAY PLANNERS

Vice Mayor Keith Brogan and Little Miss San Dimas Michelle Patterson discuss the plans for the 15th annual birthday barbecue in the City of San Dimas Aug. 7. The deep-pit barbecue will be held at San Dimas Canyon Park and feature music, hula hoop contests, drill teams, dancing, special displays and demonstrations. The second annual Little Miss San Dimas contest will be held for girls 5 to 7. The event is co-sponsored by the city, Chamber of Commerce and Bicentennial Commission. Tickets are available at the chamber office and from members.

Woman, 45, found dead in her home

A Pomona woman was found dead in her home Tuesday morning and a note asking her husband not to attempt to save her also was in the room, police reported.

The victim, Patsy Jean Cox, 45, was dead when she was found in the bedroom of the home at 1607 S. Palomares St. The discovery was made by her 16-year-old daughter, Jennie.

Police reported finding four empty prescription containers and the unsigned note in the room. They quoted Amon A. Cox, 43, as saying his wife had been despondent and had been under medical care.

Coroner's deputies planned an autopsy to determine the cause of Mrs. Cox' death.

Youth suffers broken wrist

The victim, Jerry Charles of 278 Foxbury Ave., was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital by ambulance for treatment.

Randy Charles, 11, ran to the fire station on Bonita Avenue and told firemen his brother had fallen from a park swing and broken his arm.

Paramedics responded and found the boy lying on the ground. Park employes said he had fallen from a swing. An ambulance was called and his family was notified.

Personnel

Chris Wilson, Chino's retiring personnel director, will be feted at a farewell dinner Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Arbor Restaurant in Upland.

The dinner, being sponsored by the city's personnel department, will be preceded by a cocktail hour at 6:30. Cost is $5.50 per person. Further information may be obtained by calling Minerva Spiess at 628-6011.

Bryant says city officials broke word on police report

Former Pomona City Councilman Clay Bryant charged Tuesday that the Pomona City Council and City Administrator Jerrold Gonce had broken their word in seeking to find out how he obtained a police report pertaining to a member of Gonce's staff.

Bryant said that before he gave the council and Gonce a copy of the report last week, it was agreed that there would be no reprisals against the person or persons who gave the document to Bryant.

Councilman Adrian Wright, who voted against the council's decision to seek an investigation, agreed with Bryant that there was a general understanding not to attempt to identify the source of the report.

The council Monday voted 4-1 to direct Police Chief F. P. Wallick to investigate and determine, if possible, who gave Bryant a copy of the confidential report.

The document is believed to center on a member of Gonce's staff, who was investigated for possible criminal behavior. No charges or arrests were ever made however, and the district attorney's office decided not to prosecute the individual.

Bryant declined to identify the person who gave him a copy of the police report, but does admit that police officers should not give copies of such documents to private citizens.

He stated, however, that there are ways for a private citizen to obtain copies of such reports without breaking the law.

He charged that the source of the report is not the issue, and that neither the council nor Gonce had the courage to fulfill their moral obligation to administratively discharge the city official identified in the report.

Wright stated that he voted against the motion to begin an investigation into the source of the report because the matter should be left up to Chief Wallick.

9 unions of retail clerks vote on contract proposals

Members of nine Retail Clerks Union locals, including Local 1428 in Pomona, who are employed in drug stores are voting today and Thursday on contract proposals made by their employers, Thrifty, Sav-On, Clark and Long's.

Executive officers of the nine locals, including Maurice Z. Cofer of Local 1428, are recommending against acceptance.

The offer is "totally inadequate," they said in a joint statement, and "leaves us no choice but to recommend rejection."

The rejection would be in effect authorization to strike.

Union officers said the full terms of the employers' proposal would not be made public until they have explained it to members and voted on it.

Approximately 10,000 employes are involved, some 1,300 of whom are pharmacists. The locals represent drug store employes from Santa Barbara and Bakersfield on the north to the Mexican border.

Other locals involved are 137 in Bakersfield, 324 in Buena Park, 770 in Los Angeles, 899 in Santa Barbara, 905 in San Pedro, 1167 in Colton, 1222 in San Diego and 1442 in Santa Monica.

Union spokesmen, speaking in Los Angeles, said that last week they were informed that medical benefits for retired clerks and supplemental benefits for unemployed and disabled union members would be cut in half.

This problem of maintenance of benefits is a major hurdle in the drug negotiations, they explained.

Autopsy set for today

An autopsy was planned today on the decomposed body of a young Lakewood man which was found along a little-used road in the foothills of Sierra Madre, sheriff's deputies said.

The victim was identified as Dennis Earl Runnells, 23. His body was found by a U.S. Forest Service employe Tuesday. It was uncertain how long the body had been lying just off Chantry Drive north of Arno Street, deputies said.

Two dogs die in fire

Two dogs died inside a Glendora house which was heavily damaged by fire Tuesday afternoon.

County firemen said Henry Ancheta, owner and occupant of the house at 1145 E. Lemon Ave., was not at home and it appeared the animals could not get out.

The loss estimate was $23,400, including $8,000 to contents. Firemen said the house was 50 per cent destroyed.

Cause of the blaze, reported at 3:21 p.m., was undetermined and is under investigation by the sheriff's arson squad and Glendora police.

It appeared the fire had started in a rear bedroom, according to firemen.

Reservations accepted

Isobel Malcolm, travel director for the Claremont Senior Citizens, is accepting reservations for a 16-day, $1,199 South Pacific tour which leaves Sept. 20.

Senior adults in all valley communities may participate.

The tour will take them to Australia, New Zealand and Fiji via 747 Jet.

The one fee covers first-class, deluxe hotel accommodations, sightseeing tours, native guides, hotel-airport transfers, baggage handling and all taxes and security charges.

Those wishing to make reservations for the tour may call Mrs. Malcom at 624-4531.

High earnings

BankAmerica Corp. has reported continued strong earnings for the first half of 1975.

President A. W. Clausen said income before securities transactions amounted to $136.2 million or $1.97 per share, an increase of 22.4 per cent compared with $111.1 million.

Director of Crippled Children's center picked

Mrs. Kathryn A. MacFarland of Pomona has been named director of the Pomona Valley Center of the Crippled Children's Society, 480 S. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont. She has been active in volunteer work with the center for many years and is a long-time valley resident.

The local center is now extending its services to 1,000 persons each month by providing mental and physical stimulation for those confined to wheelchairs, braces and crutches.

Crippled Children's Society offers and extensive recreation and rehabilitation programs this summer for the handicapped child and young adult. Under the direction of Steve Noceti, the center is conducting programs in swimming, games, music, arts and crafts, field trips and resident summer camping.

The center's therapeutic pool is used daily throughout the summer for individuals of all age levels. For this first time, a program of water safety for the handicapped infant is being offered on Mondays at 9 a.m. with John Donaldson as the instructor.

As a member of the American Speech and Hearing Society, the Pomona Valley Center offers a full-time program for speech therapy and for evaluation for persons up to 18. Priority is given to cleft palate, cerebral palsy and hard of hearing children.

Therapy is generally scheduled twice weekly with the speech therapist, Katie Baier, equipped to treat various language disorders, auditory perceptual disorders and those related to functional articulation.

Crippled Children's Society offers year-round services free of charge. Funds are provided through the annual Crippled Children's Seal Campaign as well as from various charity committees and in-plant donation groups.

Resident camping for handicapped children and young adults throughout greater Los Angeles is offered at Camp Joan Mier on the seashore and Camp Paivika in the mountains.

The Pomona Valley Center extends its services to Pomona, Claremont, Covina, West Covina, San Dimas, La Verne, Glendora, Azusa, La Puente, Bassett, Diamond Bar, Hacienda Heights, City of Industry, Rowland Heights, Walnut and Charter Oak.

Persons interested in more information or wishing to volunteer time at the local center may call 621-4727.

Another cause for celebration

Americans not only gained their independence 199 years ago but their economic independence as well.

In 1776, between the appearance of Thomas Paine's "Common Sense" and the Declaration of Independence, another remarkable document was published: Adam Smith's "An Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations."

This one book, says a Yankee businessman, not only launched the Industrial Revolution in England but gave philosophy, form and substance to what became the Capitalist Revolution in America. "It set in motion here in the infant nation the most uninhibited expression of individual or private enterprise the world has ever experienced, then or now," says T. Mitchell Ford, president of New England-based Emhart Corp.

Speaking at commencement exercises at the Hartford Graduate Center in Hartford, Conn., he suggested that next year's Bicentennial celebration might be a good time for Americans to take stock and balance out the apocalyptic prophecies about America's future.

The historical version of the American future was founded on the assumption that all things inevitably get better and bigger. We enjoyed, so we thought, special providential immunity from the tragedies, corruption and other human maladies and afflictions of other nations.

Long before the burglars were caught at Watergate and before many of us were sitting in gasoline lines, however, we knew how unrealistic that vision was. Today, we have a better feeling for the limits of our resources and our possibilities.

But that does not validate, in Ford's view, the litany of criticisms emanating from a gaggle of doomsayers who see the end to America itself.

It sould be a tragedy, he says, if we surrendered to the Cassandras who read in Watergate and corporate scandals and ecological and economic crises a sign that we are living beyond our economic and moral means. It is not, he maintains, the beginning of the end of higher American principles, as some dourly forecast.

Thus, he urges, it is important that we commemorate next year not alone the creation of this nation but also the establishment of a totally unique economic system — "a system that has made dreams possible and realizable."

Chino's traditional program

Dear Editor:

I would like to commend your reporter Jon Morris on his fair reporting of the school situation in Chino. It is only through the news media such as his articles that the public is made aware of what is happening in our schools.

Those of us who wish our students to be placed in the traditional program are only asking the school board to honor what they have given us, a traditional track in all but two of the schools that are presently on YRS. The administration is trying to take this away from us by instituting a waiting list for the traditional program. The superintendent has stated that we were given a choice. "This has been overlooked — these people had a chance on two occasions to enroll in either program" (Progress Bulletin, July 16th).

Two chances indeed. The first time, in January, there was one elementary school in the entire city with a traditional track. Many parents who believe in the neighborhood school didn't want to bus their students to this school. At the ninth grade level the traditional program was not well organized, the students being interspersed with YRS students. The second chance came in March after the school board had designated the traditional track in all but two of the schools. This so-called chance was a form letter sent through the mail, bulk rate (everything pertaining to YRS has come first class mail) mailed in the middle of the week and was due back in the school by the following Monday.

Twenty five percent of the students were on vacation and many parents didn't even receive the letter. Also, the form stated IF there was a traditional track in the school, would we enroll our students. Naturally, many parents waited to see if there was to be a track before they wanted to do the enrolling. The board had set a figure of 116 students before it would be feasible to operate a track. In two schools there weren't 116, so these schools were omitted from the list offering traditional. Yet, in YRS, there was as of June 30th, fourteen tracks with less than 116 students. Fair? Feasible?

One board member stated, "We're going through this same year round hassle again and this community will be torn to shreds". He accused the Citizens for Improved Education of doing this. I disagree. I say the board and the administration are the ones who are "tearing this community to shreds" by not honoring board action and allowing ALL students who wish traditional to be so placed. We're not asking those who like YRS to give it up, we are only asking that those of us who wish traditional be given the opportunity of having it.

Another board member, criticizing CIE for not divulging the number of its members said that "he could form an organization, have myself as spokesman and wave a flag around." More Power to him! It isn't the number of members in an organization that counts, but the support that the organization can get from the community for what it represents or believes in.

I hope the Progress Bulletin continues the good coverage of our school situation in Chino.

Tom Sawyer, male chauvinist?

It sounds like a whitewash job to us, but the Hannibal, Mo., Jaycees have decided that boys are boys and girls are girls and never the (Mark) twain shall meet — not when it comes to the annual reenactment of the famous fence-painting episode in Twain's classic "Tom Sawyer."

A number of local girls had picketed this year's Tom Sawyer Days Fence Painting Contest after their applications were rejected. In the competition, boys are judged on their costumes and the speed and efficiency with which they whitewash a section of wooden fence.

"Somewhere in contemporary life, something should remain distinctively masculine and something else distinctively feminine," said Jaycees president David Ebbing.

"No other literary character so typifies and makes vivid the wonderfulness of boyhood as Tom Sawyer. No literary character better exemplifies the charm, frailty and mysteries of feminine youth as Becky Thatcher. We believe none of the characteristics of either Tom or Becky should be blurred."

Well, it's been a long, long time since we read "Tom Sawyer" and we have no idea what Samuel Clemens, alias Mark Twain, would think about the social changes that have taken place since his time. But we don't recall being especially impressed with the respective masculine and feminine characteristics of Tom and Becky. It was just a good story.

We also remember that in his other writings Clemens had some biting comments about the mores, taboos and prejudices of his contemporaries. Thus we have more than a sneaking suspicion that if he were around today he would quite favorably consider a sequel to "Tom Sawyer" in which Becky Thatcher proved that, "charm, frailty and mysteries" of femininity notwithstanding, she could wield a brush as well as any boy.

Come to think of it, though, Becky was probably too smart to have been duped into the fence-painting chore the way Tom cozzened his masculine friends. That may be some consolation to the rejected girls of Hannibal.

Army's LSD war games

WASHINGTON — During a mock battle in the late 1950s, the Army sent a couple of dozen assault troops under the influence of LSD into the fray and filmed the chaotic results.

It was comic opera, with troops dressed in battle gear behaving like an army of Gomer Pyles.

The 15-minute film showed how the troops reacted under battle-simulated conditions. Reported Dr. John Buckman, a psychiatry professor at the University of Virginia medical school: "The soldiers showed lack of motivation, lack of ability to attend to detail."

In one sequence, the drugged soldiers were supposed to climb a cement wall. "They were totally disinterested in the task. Quite clumsy," recalled Dr. Buckman.

One soldier in the film lost a button to the fly of his pants. He stopped in the middle of the mock battle and scoured the ground for the button. "That soldier couldn't continue the war until he found his button," said the psychiatrist.

Another test had the soldiers firing a mortar. "Their aim was grossly inaccurate," he said. "They giggled at inappropriate times."

The soldiers in the film also were ordered to march in formation, alternating their feet at each count. "They walked," according to Buckman, "like Gomer Pyle."

Drawing a weird comparison, he concluded: "The results were similar to when a spider was fed LSD. His web was much more chaotic than normal."

Footnote: The Army's LSD experements were an outgrowth of the Korean War, an attempt to learn more about the brainwashing used on POWs in Korea. The accounts of the POWs were remarkably similar to the experiences of troops under LSD, according to doctors who conducted the experiments.

Governments on both sides of the Iron Curtain became interested in chemical means of altering human behavior. Several eminent psychiatrists have said LSD could be used as an effective weapon of war. The drug could be compressed in aerosol containers and dropped from planes. Some psychiatrists suggested it would produce insanity on a large scale.

If the drug could be slipped into the food or drink of top military planners, it could lead to chaotic decisions. But most of the psychiatrists whom we interviewed were appalled at the thought of using LSD as a weapon. For them, it is a clinical tool for treating alcoholism, heroin addiction and other problems. Its military use "would be like turning a scalpel into a sword," said one.

Private schools booming

Most of our nation's lawmakers, whose laws have tended to downgrade public education, choose private schools for their own children. Nearly all congressmen in Washington, D.C., send their children to private schools.

So do millions of other parents in more than 30 states where two new private schools start up every day! By every measure, public education in the United States is on the decline; private education is booming.

Between 1971 and 1973 public school enrollment in our 49 largest cities declined by half a million students. Significantly, those schools shrank in size despite an influx of almost half a million black and brown students.

This comparison suggests that the decline of public education and the increase in the number of private schools is race-related.

Not necessarily. Surely the proliferation of private schools across the South, which began accelerating in 1961, was largely intended to provide all-white academies.

Today, however, despite further court restraints on segregation — even in private education — enrollment in church schools continues to increase. And most of these church-sponsored schools are integrated.

Now, the flight from public schools is mostly in response to academic backsliding and rampant and often uncontrollable misbehavior.

Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.), chairman of the juvenile delinquency subcommittee, says, "Murders, rapes, attacks on teachers, vandalism and prostitution in public schools constitute a national scandal."

Serious physical assaults on teachers last year — the ones that were reported — averaged 300 a day! Assaults on students were many times that.

The church school is a refuge from such violence. But not all church schools are prospering.

Roman Catholic parochial schools, plagued by money problems, are closing their doors one a day — while other Christian schools are being opened two a day. And they're not all in the South.

California averages one new Christian school each week. The Christian school movement has become the fastest-growing educational movement in the United States.

While Christian schools' faculty salaries are generally lower, there has never been a teachers' strike for higher wages in any of the schools. Many educators are eager to flee the asphalt jungle, for less money, for the comparatively tranquil environment of the private school.

These newer church schools remain mostly white if only for economic reasons. However, numerous black and otherwise integrated schools are springing up in Watts and other areas of California. Tuition ranges from $400 to $1,000 a year. And this tuition parents are willing to pay above and beyond the public school taxes, which they must continue to pay, in order to obtain higher quality education, to escape the danger and nuisance of busing and to provide a school atmosphere where Christian principles control the curriculum, where classroom prayer is permitted and where behavorial discipline is obligatory and enforced.

Will the result in many cities be a proliferation of private schools and a continuing decline in public schools? Jack Buttram of the American Assn. of Christian Schools expects public schools are going to be like charity hospitals, where you go when you can't afford to anywhere else.

Just in jest

Apparently there are no limits to what American knowhow and inventive genius can accomplish. A necessity arises and some obliging inventor solves the problem by immediately getting a pregnant idea which he bravely nurtures through the customary birth pangs, and as a result we now have square peas that can be more easily handled by our astronauts in the weightlessness of outer space. — But sometimes here in America we become so adept at mothering inventions that it gets a bit difficult to find the necessity for them.

The new bikini shorts for men — shorts shaped like one finger gloves — is a case in point. And don't you think it may be just a bit far fetched to blame Old Mother Necessity for another recent invention called selfdeodorizing underwear?

U.S. industry plays it safe

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Steel prices are higher than they should be because the industry hasn't adopted the latest production technology. Japan has. So has West Germany.

The same problem, in part holds true for shipbuilding. Other countries undercut us. Both the Navy and private shipping pay through the nose for new bottoms.

So it is also with textiles, cement and a growing number of other products. The list is longer each year.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Energy Research and Development Administration and other pioneers in technology have lists of hundreds of new devices and technical applications useful for industry which are being ignored.

Companies are finding it more profitable in all too many instances to spend their money making minor improvements in what they already make, than in developing new products, or in investing in quantum jump improvements in production methods.

In part this is because risk taking — and major changes always involves greater risk — is so costly in these days of capital shortages, high interest rates and marketing uncertainties. With money so costly, investors know they can double their funds in five to eight years with relatively little risk. What incentive then is there to put their money in risky advanced technology? So reports Jacob Rabinow, chief research engineer of the Institute for Applied Technology of the respected National Bureau of Standards.

In part, the reluctance to take chances is because industry has gradually acquired managers more interested in short term gains which show up well on their records. Most company managers look closely at the stock market these days. Heavy investments for long-term gains may mean a period of slow growth, or none at all, until wrinkles are ironed out of the new technology and profits being to roll in. Meanwhile the company's share may not do well on the exchanges, making funds more difficult to come by.

Then there's the patent problem. The current attitude of many courts make it less and less certain that company moving into a new product or using a new technology will have the patent protection intended by the framers of the Constitution. In certain districts, the courts have regularly held invalid all contested patents brought before them.

Companies have found, too, that adopting new technology frequently results in serious hidden costs impossible to figure in advance.

Because new technologies explore areas which are not well defined environmentally or as to safety requirements, the manufacturer may be hit in succession by long holdups and unanticipated changes in operations demanded by the environmental, product safety and worker safety agencies and by any citizen groups which wish to bring court action.

The difficulty in figuring the costs and other complications occasioned by the requirements of these agencies are so great that lawyers frequently are more important than scientists in technological development. Discouraged managers may therefore decide to stand pat with what they're already producing — where they know the ropes.

Because the government has no adequate system for easing the blow to workers displaced by technological developments, companies making major production changes find union opposition frequently so great they may decide changes is not worth the candle.

The problem does not lie alone with industry. Friends who operate high technology electronics firms report that the Defense Department, the Central Intelligence Agency, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which talk incessantly about the advanced technology they use and what they favor, are notoriously slow in adopting new concepts. The estimate I have is that the FBI and CIA are almost 10 years behind in some electronic applications.

My daughter bought a 1974 Porsche with a silver metallic paint job.

The car was serviced regularly at mileage intervals. The paint started to peel and the finish looks like it was polished with steel wool.

My daughter casually mentioned this at times the car was serviced but nothing was done.

At Montclair Plaza early this year she was approached by another Porsche owner who experienced the same problem and was told his car was re-painted at no charge. She was advised the paint on her car was a poor factory job.

My daughter has been teaching in Kansas City since April and I have entered the situation on her behalf. I was requested to bring the car to the local dealer in April for a factory representative to check the paint job.

The only result was a request to bring the car back June 5 as the factory representative was to be present again at that time. After this inspection, I was advised that the representative was granting a pro-rated amount of $73.34 if I presented a paid invoice by July 1.

Estimates I have made to have the car repainted have ranged from $200 to $350. I have considered $73.34 a paltry sum. —J. A., Pomona.

After we got in touch with Volkswagen of America's Western office, Steve Du Frane, customer assistance representative of the firm, pointed out to you that paint is specifically excluded from the vehicle's warranty.

Justification for this, he said, is that paint is subject to numerous outside influences beyond the control of the manufacturer. Among these are industrial fallout, pollution, climatic conditions and road hazards.

He spoke of a goodwill policy to assist customers who are experiencing paint difficulties and said this policy was initiated to further maintain customer satisfaction.

The policy operates on a pro-rated basis, he said, and financial assistance offered your daughter was determined along those lines.

Du Frane said the firm is unable to offer further assistance.

You were unhappy with this reply. The last we heard you were considering consultation with an investigator from the Department of Motor Vehicles, which has responsibility for handling dealer problems.

Ann Landers

She just doesn't show up

Dear Ann Landers: I'm not asking for help. I just hope certain people will see themselves and shape up.

Recently you printed a letter about a friend who was always late. Well, I have a relative who is NEVER late. She just doesn't show up. More often than not, she will phone 20 minutes before I leave the house and say "I just can't make it."

Frequently when I arrive at the place we were supposed to meet, there will be a message. "Sorry — something came up at the last minute . . ."

It's impossible to discontinue our relationship because she's a member of the family — and sensitive, to boot. What can I do? — Slow Burn

Dear S.B.: Those frequent "no shows" are a sad breed. Often they make dates in advance fully intending to keep them, but when the time comes they can't seem to get it all together.

Simply plan around such people. Assume they aren't going to make it. When they do it will be a pleasant surprise.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a woman wrote to ask what to do about excessive perspiration. She said it was ruining her life. She claimed the perspiration virtually poured from under her arms and ruined her clothing. Even the rubberized shields didn't help. The poor thing had tried every anti-perspirant on the market without success.

You told her she might have hyperhydrosis and urged her to go to a dermatoligist who had the patience and know-how to stick with her until he found a formula that worked.

Why didn't you mention the possibility of surgery? A friend of mine had the same problem and solved it by having the ganglion nerves removed. How about it? — Wanting To Help

Dear Wanting: Surgery should be the very last resort. Too many unnecessary operations are performed in this country as it is.

I'm not about to add to the number by suggesting surgery for excessive perspiration. My advice is — get the opinions of three dermatologists. If two of the three deem your case extremely sever — and can find no chemical solution — let THEM suggest surgery.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll bet you received a ton of mail from people who were mad at that man who wrote to say he didn't dislike cats or dogs — it was children he couldn't stand. He then went on to say that most parents are scared to death of their kids, that the little monsters run the households and American children are the most spoiled, obnoxious brats on the face of the earth.

That idiot missed the central point. It's not the kids who are to blame, it's the parents. Children aren't born obnoxious. They get that way because Mom and Dad don't have gumption enough to set limits and say "NO." It's up to the parents to see that their children conduct themselves in an acceptable manner. So why didn't you set the record straight? — Just Asking

Dear Just: I DID say it — for the umpteenth time. But I'll say it again. I know of nothing more pathetic than a hostile, obnoxious child. He is shunned and unwelcome. He is also miserable and lonely.

Just not geared to 'go native'

Nudity just isn't catching on in this country.

Oh, I know you've all read stories about America's 5,000 miles of beaches dotted with bared bodies under the sun, but it ends there. And the reasons have nothing to do with modesty, prudery, or the law.

The simple truth is, nudity is impractical. Face it. We live in a wicker-chair-nine-months-of-winter-have-the-correct-change-world. If you don't believe it, ask yourself: Would you hire a man who didn't have a pocket to carry his Social Security card in?

Would you date a man who had to carry his American Express card behind his ear?

Would you marry a man who checked into a motel without luggage?

Blending into the labor market has been tried by unclothes people and failed miserably. Some of them have turned to a life of crime only to experience more disappointment.

Day after day you read stories of streaking bank robbers who are apprehended minutes after their getaway. It seems no matter how a person wearing only brown shoes and carrying a small black bag tries to "lose" himself in a crowd, he's always spotted.

A few unclothed persons have gotten temporary work by running across a football field during a game or appearing unexpectedly at awards ceremonies, but it's seasonal work.

The country just isn't geared toward people who are unclothed. If we were to "go native" it would throw everything out of balance:

1—Turnstiles in supermarkets would have to be heated.

2—Pickpockets would starve.

3—Mr. Blackwell would have to amend his list and come out with the Ten Worst-Undressed Women In America.

4—Disney movies in which animals appeared with clothes on would have to have parental guidance and discretion.

5—Cher would have to wear puffed sleeves and cover her navel to get attention.

6—A common Band-Aid would be considered costume jewelry.

But worst of all, most of us would be greeted not with "How are you?" but "What Happened?"

I couldn't stand that.

Dr. Lamb

Psoriasis is not contagious

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have just past my 52nd birthday and never had any skin problems. Now I'm doctoring psoriasis. Please write something on the dreadful, red patches of burning, itching skin trouble.

It came on me suddenly and now has me really worried. I have been getting treatments for two months from the skin doctor, and my skin is really no better. Is it hereditary? My mother had it over most of her body.

DEAR READER — Apparently you are one of about eight million people in the United States with this skin disease. It can vary from a simple but very important cosmetic problem to causing severe illness, including a form of arthritis.

The basic problem is an acceleration of the normal growth rate of the skin. We normally shed our skin surface cells. The process is just markedly increased in psoriasis. The overproduction of cells pile up on the surface of the skin as silver gray-like scaley surfaces. Underneath the scales are red blotches of fresh skin that grows so fast it doesn't develop the normal protective covering.

The excess scales shed everywhere. The victim may get up from a chair to find he or she has left a pile of skin scales behind.

Although the disease can have important medical consequences even these probably don't rival the social consequences of the disease. The lesions on the skin are unsightly, and many people, through ignorance, think they are contagious. They are not. They have nothing to do with germs, and you can't catch the disease by contact.

There is a hereditary characteristic to the disease, but just because a parent has or had it is no reason to think that you will have it too.

Many people with psoriasis withdraw from social contact, which can be as big a problem as the disease itself. The National Psoriasis Foundation was formed in part to combat this problem. If you want information on psoriasis you might write to them at 6415 S.W. Canyon Court, Portland, Oregon 97221. There is no membership fee if you want to join. It is just patients with psoriasis helping other patients with the same problem.

There are many forms of treatment, commonly the treatment is individualized. In the main, treatments have included coal tar ointments, ultra violet light, cortisone (hormone) ointments, and even agents commonly used in treatment of cancer. A popular example of the latter is methotrexate (MTX), approved for this use by the Food and Drug Administration only in recent years.

It may sound strange to you to use a drug used in cancer treatment to treat psoriasis. The drug inhibits or slows down cell growth and hence cancer cell growth. It also slows down the overgrowth of skin cells in psoriasis. I hasten to add, psoriasis is not a form of cancer. MTX is a powerful medicine and can have serious side effects. Accordingly, doctors often don't use it except for cases that don't respond to some of the other forms of available treatment.

Blackwood is not really a method of bidding slams. It is a method of checking for aces after you have counted enough trick-taking potential to make a small or even a grand slam.

Thus, you should plan to bid six any time your partner's response shows that your side holds three aces.

If his response shows that you hold all four aces you may settle for six invite seven or even bid seven.

The normal way to invite seven is to follow up your four notrump with five notrump. This following up aks for kings in the same manner four notrump has asked for aces. Six clubs shows zero or four kings, six diamonds one king, six hearts two kings and six spades three kings.

It is most important to bear in mind that when you ask for kings you are guaranteeing that your side holds all the aces.

This makes it possible for the partner of the Blackwooder to take charge when he has the right cards. It wasn't hard for North to count to 13 tricks after South's bids of four and five notrump. Then since the game was match points, North bid the grand slam in notrump. Ten points means nothing in rubber bridge—in duplicate it may mean the difference between a good score and a top.

Ask the Jacobys

"I responded one notrump to my partner's spade opening. He jumped to three spades. What should I bid with:

♠ 8 4 ♥ X X ♦ A 10 X X X ♣ K 9 X X ?"

We would bid four spades. Our seven high card points are in the form of an ace and a king and even our doubleton heart might be worth a trick. Our second choice is to pass and we definitely would not rebid three notrump.

Lose weight with wines

If you drink a little wine with your meals, you'll probably lose weight. Or so some researchers at the Univeristy of California now believe. They isolated for 75 days a batch of volunteers who heroically offered to imbibe of the grape while remaining on closely supervised diets. When the alcohol was removed from the wine, they still lost weight. But when water was substituted for the wine, they began to pick up pounds again, or at least stopped losing them.

ROMANS hung their kerchiefs from their belts, the English hung theirs from their sleeves. And it was the "hang" of those kerchiefs that gave us the pronunciation of "handkerchief." But some opinionated scribe long ago changed the spelling of the word on the theory it should be so named because it's used in the "hand."

Delegates sought for Demo panel

A search is being conducted in Pomona for delegates to serve on the Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee.

The seven delegates and seven alternates will represent the 65th Assembly District and would be charged with assisting local, state and national Democratic candidates in getting elected to office.

Interviews of applicants was held last Saturday, with 18 persons submitting applications. More interviews will be held next Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Pomona Valley YMCA.

Delegates are normally elected by the voters in each Assembly District during the general election, said Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist.

But it wasn't determined until after last year's primary election that the 65th District, which includes all of Pomona, would have a full delegation of seven to the county central committee even though much of the district lies within San Bernardino County.

"Rather than select political cronies and acquaintances for these positions, central committee Chairman Les Rivers and I have decided to interview all qualified candidates to get grassroots representation throughout Pomona," said McVittie.

To qualify for appointment, applicants must be registered Democrats residing within Pomona who can attend meetings in Los Angeles on the second Tuesday evening of each month.

Those selected will take office in September and serve until June 1976 when they must face election.

McVittie and Rivers will nominate seven delegates and seven alternates and present these to the central committee which makes the appointments.

"We are seeking representation from all age groups and all elements of society who are interested in getting involved with the community," declared Rivers.

Pomona has been divided in seven geographical areas based on the number of registered Democrats. "We hope to have a voters registrar in each precinct and also have precinct organizations with block meetings," he added. "This will serve to give McVittie a closer relationship with the people."

McVittie said he supported the broad representation within the community. "I want to see what is needed and this would give me broader exposure."

The delegates serve without pay two year terms.

Rains must come soon to save Iowa's corn crop

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Farmers in Iowa need a good, soaking rain within a few days or they will risk losing up to 650 million bushels of corn, state Secretary of Agriculture Robert Lounsberry says.

At current market prices averaging about about $2.85 a bushel for Iowa corn, the potential loss to farmers could be in excess of $1.8 billion.

"If it doesn't come this week, we'll be hurt more than we'd like to admit," Lounsberry said Monday. "The drought conditions might cut yield 30 to 50 bushels per acre."

Iowa produces about 20 per cent of the nation's corn crop and in a good year will harvest more than 1.2 billion bushels. The forecast for this year had been 109 bushels an acre.

The National Corn Growers Association says it is surveying the crop nationwide and it will be next week before it knows the situation elsewhere.

Lounsberry says the weather has been good in Indiana and Illinois, which follow Iowa in corn production.

Until now, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has estimated that U.S. farmers will produce a record wheat and corn crop this year that will meet domestic and export demands without seriously affecting American consumer prices.

The National Weather Service forecasts mostly sunny and hot weather for Iowa the next few days, with temperatures expected to top 100 degrees today.

Iowa's corn and soybeans crops are suffering from a combination of excessive heat and insufficient moisture, the Iowa Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday.

"To recover, we would have to have a good inch of rain spread out over a 12 to 24 hour period," Lounsberry said.

Woman hits Reno jackpot

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A Marysville, Calif. woman who struck it rich Saturday on a $50,011 jackpot in Reno credited it all to the "luck of the Irish".

Pauline Thompson spent three hours playing the progressive dollar slot machine at Harolds Club before it paid off.

Up to an inch of rain fell in scattered Iowa locations last week, but the varied rainfall brought only temporary relief.

Last year, a combination of early flooding followed by a severe drought and an early frost cut the average yield to 81 bushels an acre.

Lounsberry said the corn crop is now in the critical pollination stage which, without rain soon, could result in the corn "producing cobs with no corn on them."

Trouble for the Iowa corn crop came about a month after heavy rains dealt a serious blow crops in the fertile Red River Valley area of western Minnesota and eastern North Dakota.

Montana became the 41st state in 1889 with its capital at Helena.

Reservists help Upland compile survey

The Army Reserve Unit in Upland is assisting the city this summer by preparing a resource survey for use during natural disasters and other emergencies.

An 11-member team from the 426th Civil Affairs Company will perform the inventory of vital supplies and equipment, from milk to bulldozers, to supplement the City of Upland emergency plan.

The team will contact resource sources between Saturday and Aug. 16 to determine supplies available that would be needed in the event of a flood or earthquake, a major industrial accident or an epidemic.

The City Manager's Office is coordinating the state-required disaster preparedness activity. Maj. Gerald Pierce is heading the Army Reserve team which is doing work that would otherwise require additional city employes.

The project is a part of the national emphasis of the Army Reserve, contributing to the community.

'Going thing today' laughing gas kills 3 youths in Texas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Police say their hands are tied in attempts to control what has apparently become the "the going thing" among some local young people, sniffing laughing gas.

Three teen-agers were found dead in a car in North Dallas over the weekend. A five-foot cylinder of laughing gas nitrous oxide — was found on the floor of the car. The valve was open. A medical examiner said the youngsters died from asphyxiation.

The deaths of Ken Ribelin, 19, Mitchell Rude, 18, and Terry Lynne Long, 18, all of Dallas, are listed by the medical examiner as "unclassified." The designation is used when officials are unable to determine whether death was caused by accident or suicide.

Narcotics officers said Monday that widespread use of nitrous oxide in place of glue sniffing and other methods of getting "high" is demonstrated by an increasing number of thefts of the gas from local hospitals.

Earlier this year, a 26-year-old orderly at Presbyterian Hospital was found dead in an operating room. Authorities said he had gone there to inhale nitrous oxide.

Nitrous oxide is described in medical texts as a general anesthetic which affects the entire body. It is used conventionally by dentists and doctors with a specific mixture of oxygen.

Officials at the medical examiner's office here said the gas creates "a blissful sensation."

"We are hearing quite a bit about nitrous oxide now," one Dallas detective said Monday. "But there is nothing we can do about it because it is not a controlled substance."

Freezing might be solution to lid shortage

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Consumers stumped by the current shortage of canning jar lids are finding there's more than one way to preserve their homegrown fruits and vegetables.

Freezing is one of the most popular alternatives, partly because of the wide variety of containers that can be used.

The canning lid shortage has spread across the country. Manufacturers and some government officials say consumers are hoarding. There also have been charges that lids simply aren't getting to retailers and the Federal Trade Commission has launched an investigation.

Industry spokesmen estimate 1975 production of replacement lids at 1.6 billion. That would be about five dozen lids for each of the 25 million or 26 million families expected to do some home canning this year.

Consumers, however, say they can't find lids at their grocers and are trying to salvage produce with other preserving techniques.

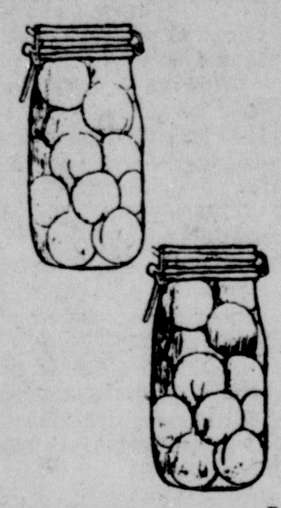
There are two basic types of packages for home freezing: rigid containers made of aluminum, glass, plastic, tin or heavily waxed cardboard and nonrigid containers like bags and sheets of cellophane, heavy aluminum foil, pliofilm and polyethylene.

The packages should be moisture and vapor resistant and must be sealed carefully. Tin cans require a sealing machine or special lids; glass jars for freezing generally call for the same kind of currently scarce lids used for home canning.

Most bags used for packaging can be heat sealed — using special equipment or household iron — or closed by twisting and folding back the top of the bag and securing it with a string, a plastic or rubber band or other tie device.

The Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture has several tips on packing produce for freezing.

—Pack food and syrup cold to speed up freezing and help keep natural color and flavor.



—Pack tightly to cut down the amount of air between individual pieces of produce. When using a bag, press the air out of the unfilled part of the bag and seal immediately.

—Allow a little head space between the packed food and the closing. Most food expands as it freezes. The amount of space needed varies with the amount and type of food.

Freeze all fruits and vegetables at zero degrees Fahrenheit or below and don't overlod the freezer. Leave a little space between packages when freezing, so air can circulate. You can move the packages closer together later on.

Most fruits and vegetables can be kept for 8 to 12 months at zero degrees or below, according to the USDA. citrus fruits and juices can be kept for four to six months.

Reminder: not all produce items can be frozen. Green onions, lettuce and other salad greens and radishes will not freeze well. Neither will tomatoes unless they are cooked first. For further information on local varieties of produce suitable for freezing, write your state agricultural extension service, experiment station or college of agriculture.

Fruits and vegetables require different preparations for freezing. Fruits can be packed unsweetened, in sugar or in syrup. Unsweetened fruits generally do not keep as well as those with the sugar or syrup, but may be preferable for use in cooking or in special diets.

Ice cream: America's favorite

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Many people look on ice cream as a strictly American dish, possibly because we consume more than 750 million gallons of the gelid stuff a year in a dazzling variety of guises from sundaes to frosteds to baked Alaskas.

Actually ice cream was enjoyed in primitive form many centuries before America's ice cream parlors came into being. Historians tell us that the Roman emperior Nero Claudius Caesar sent teams of runners into the mountains for snow and served it to his guests laced with honey and fruit juices. Not too different from the snow and maple syrup mixes served at sugaring-off parties in Vermont each spring.

At the end of the 13th century, Marco Polo returned from the Far East with a crude recipe for sherbet. And in 16th century Italy, they made a kind of ice cream from milk sweetened with honey and then frozen.

Paul Dickson, who fascinated readers with "The Great American Ice Cream Book" a couple of years back, said the first substantial information on the frozen delight appeared in an anonymous manuscript in France about 1700. It told how to make such exotic goodies as apricot, violet, rose and carmel ice creams.

There seems little doubt that ice cream as we know it was perfected in America about 250 years ago. George Washington was said to have acquired a fondness for it after Mrs. Alexander Hamilton served him a dish at a dinner party in 1789. Thomas Jefferson had his own pet recipe and Dolley Madison glamorized ice cream by serving mounds of it at White House state dinners.

Ice cream was once reserved for affluent Americans because ice was hard to come by in hot weather and the ice cream itself was difficult to make in the old pot freezers.

The a woman named Nancy Johnson invented the hand-cranked portable freezer in 1846, and about the same time they created the insulated ice house which made that commodity more easily available. Soon peddlers were selling ice cream to youngsters in the streets at a few pennies a scoop.

One of the most intriguing ice cream combinations I have seen is the "hot" ice soda an ingenious soda jerk whipped up for actor Burgess Meredith.

1 cup fresh hot coffee
¼ cup cocoa
1 scoop vanilla ice cream
1 tablespoon whipped cream

Into blender pour hot coffee over cocoa and blend. Pour over ice cream in soda glass — keeping spoon in glass. When ice cream floats to the top add whipped cream and serve.

Germany's creation spices up potato salad

Germans were among the last Europeans to learn to use the potato, but they were imaginative about it.

Among potato-based dishes Germans created was hot potato salad.

This dish has gained wide popularity in America. With a zingy taste, it lends a little something special to almost any meal.

In making hot potato salad, it is best to make it with potatoes cooked in their jackets and peeled and marinated while still warm. Small red, waxy potatoes are best to use, but any kind will do. Potatoes should hold their shape and not crumble when sliced or diced. They should not break when mixed with dressing.

Using a glass-ceramic skillet as a serving dish that will go from rangetop to table saves both time and energy. Often you can save energy when cooking in glass-ceramic cookware by turning off the heat and using stored heat for the final few minutes of cooking.

HOT POTATO SALAD

½ cup oil and vinegar dressing
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
dash of pepper
4 slices bacon
1 cup chopped onion
1/3 cup chopped green pepper
3 cups cooked, cubed potatoes
¼ cup chopped pimento
4 hard cooked eggs, sliced

Combine dressing, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper in one-cup Pyrex brand measure. Fry bacon crisp in 10-inch glass-ceramic skillet, using medium heat; remove from skillet. Drain on paper towels and crumble. Saute onion and green pepper in bacon drippings; add potatoes, pimento, bacon and dressing mixture.

Mix gently until thoroughly warm. Garnish with eggs and serve from skillet. Serves eight.

Breakfast: important meal of day

What subjects do you study in school each day? Science? Mathematics? History?

No matter what subjects your schedule includes you will do your best in school if you begin your nutrition homework by starting each day with a nourishing breakfast. Most students who eat a nutritious morning meal will feel, look and perform better during their morning classes than those who eat no breakfast at all.

Those who have a tendency to skip breakfast often give one of these four excuses: 1) not hungry, 2) dieting, 3) no time, 4) breakfast causes upset stomach.

Breakfast skippers who claim they are not hungry in the morning and feel fine without food should eat a nourishing breakfast for a period of two or three weeks and then make an honest appraisal to see whether they feel better in the morning and accomplish more at school. They probably will be surprised at the results.

Students who are watching their weight should be encouraged to eat breakfast because it helps prevent overeating at lunch. A basic breakfast of skim milk and granola-type cereal with fruit is not only satisfying and relatively low in calories, but supplies large amounts of protein, vitamins and minerals.

Those students who say they don't have time for breakfast should experiment by getting up fifteen minutes earlier in the morning. The extra sleep won't do them nearly as much good as a nourishing breakfast. Having plenty of convenience foods on hand and partially preparing breakfast in advance will save time.

Students who complain that food in the morning makes them sick can experiment by starting with a single food — a piece of fruit, a glass of milk or a handful of peanuts. (Peanuts supply large amounts of protein, niacin, riboflavin and other important food elements.) After two or three weeks they gradually can add other foods.

SESAME PEANUT GRANOLA

3 cups old-fashioned oats
1 cup coarsely chopped peanuts
1 cup sesame seed
½ cup wheat germ
¼ cup Planters Peanut Oil
¼ cup honey
½ cup dark seedless raisins
¼ cup Planters Sunflower Nuts

Combine oats, Planters Cocktail Peanuts, sesame seed and wheat germ in large bowl. Heat Planters Peanut Oil and honey to just below boiling point. Pour over oat mixture; tossing to coat thoroughly. Spread mixture evenly over bottom of jelly roll pan.

Roast at 300 degrees F. for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally, until lightly browned. Remove from oven; mix in raisins and Planters Sunflower Nuts. Cool. Use as cold cereal or a dry snack. Store in tightly covered containers or plastic bags. Makes 6¾ cups.

Muffins

Cut the kernels from leftover cooked corn-on-the-cob and add them to muffin batter. Crumbled crisply cooked bacon and finely chopped green pepper may also be added.

Cross ribs: an economical, delicious BBQ

Tender beef steaks cut from a cross rib roast are an excellent and economical choice for barbecuing.

For family style steak, a slice cut two inches thick makes four servings. Steaks cut ¾ to one inch thick are perfect single or double serving sizes. Boneless cross rib has always been a favorite for roasting — the same satisfying flavor and tender juiciness makes it splendid for charcoal grilling, too.

Cross rib steaks are tender enough to cook as is, or marinate first for extra flavor. Here we used a tasty lemon, onion, mustard and worcestershire seasoned mixture — marinate beef at least an hour before cooking or overnight if you wish, depending on the degree of flavoring and tenderizing desired. For a complete cookout dinner, serve the charcoal grilled beef with little pots of baked beans, tossed green salad and corn on the cob. It's a menu to please the whole family. For dessert — a choice of fresh summer fruits.

During barbecue season beef steaks are in big demand. To stretch the budget take advantage of specials and sales on roasts and larger pieces. Cutting them up yourself into steaks and chunks for kabobs is often economical. Besides cross rib roasts, rump and chuck roasts are good choices for dividing into smaller cuts for the grill. Full cut round steak, too, is easily divided into pieces — grill the tender eye of round and top round as is. The bottom round portion will need tenderizing before cooking.

Any cut of beef is a good value, nutritionally speaking. The choicest steak and stew beef alike contain the same complete, body building protein and other essential nutrients such as iron and the B vitamins.

LEMON BARBECUED BEEF

CROSS RIB STEAK

4 (¾-inch thick) slices rolled beef cross rib
1½ teaspoons grated lemon peel
1/3 cup lemon juice
¼ cup vegetable oil
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon pepper
Lemon slices
Minced parsley

Place beef in single layer in shallow pan. Mix lemon peel and juice with oil, onion, salt, worcestershire sauce, mustard and pepper. Pour over beef slices. Marinate in refrigerator 3 hours or overnight. Grill over hot coals, brushing occasionally with marinade, 5 to 7 minutes on each side. Serve topped with lemon slices and sprinkling of minced parsley.

VARIATION: For a family size steak, order a 2-inch slice of cross rib roast. Do not remove string. Marinate as above. Cook over hot coals, turning once, about 20 minutes on each side or until done as desired. Baste occasionally. Makes 4 servings.

A low calorie 'dagger dinner'

A shish kebob is one of the lowest calorie, best tasting ways to dine.

It's summer's answer to stew — hearty chunks of meat, potatoes and vegetables strung on skewers for outdoor grilling.

Because so many foods taste delicious kebob-style, you can create your own favorite combinations using vegetables from your own garden and meat or poultry on special at the supermarket.

Dinner on a Dagger was created especailly with both economy and calories in mind. A cut-up chicken, or when they're a good buy at the market, thighs or drumsticks, are small and ready to skewer. If you've never tried them on a shish kebob, you'll be surprised at how delicious they are. New potatoes, onions, mushrooms and green peppers complete these easy-to-fix kebobs. All are low in calories and cost, colorful and great tasting. Your favorite bottled (or homemade) barbecue sauce is the flavorful baster Cook "daggers" under your broiler or grill them on the patio or at the picnic site over a charcoal fire. There are only 255 calories per serving. Dinner on a Dagger is indeed cool, summer slender eating at its very best.

DINNER ON A DAGGER

6 chicken thighs or drumsticks
12 small or new potatoes
3 medium onions, halved
6 metal skewers
6 medium fresh mushrooms
1 green pepper, cut into 6 wedges
½ cup barbecue sauce

To make chicken kebobs, thread a chicken piece, 2 potatoes and half an onion on each skewer. Line a jelly-roll pan with aluminum foil. Place kebobs on pan and bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes or until potatoes are tender, turning once. Add mushrooms and green peppers to skewers; bake 15 minutes more. Remove kebobs from the oven. Preheat broiler.* Brush chicken and all vegetables with barbecue sauce. Place under broiler and cook, turning and basting frequently with more sauce, for 10 minutes or until browned. Arrange on plates. Serve at once.

Makes 6 servings. About 255 calories each.

If preferred, prepare outdoor grill and finish cooking kebobs outside.

If you're one of the many people who don't enjoy summer without a boat, get a sailboat instead of a motorboat. You'll save a fortune on gas, and won't have to pollute the environment to enjoy yourself. —R.M., Babylon, N.Y.

Save foil wrappers from margarine sticks. Store them in freezer until needed for wrapping potatoes for baking. You won't need to grease potatoes since foil has a small amount of margarine stiking to it still. Saves time, mess and money. —L.H., Ravenna, Neb.

Use stored heat to cook. Turn off the heat of electric burners a few minutes before the food is entirely cooked and the heat in the burner will finish it. —G.F., St. Paul, Neb.

Use vents and exhaust fans to pull heat and moisture from attics, kitchens and laundries directly to the outside. Close these off when not in use in an airconditioned room, or they'll pull the cold air out too. —S.D., Roanoke, N.C.

Take Pumpernickel to spice up a picnic

Pumpernickel sandwiches can make a hit at the ball game even if your team can't.

They also strike a tasty note at concerts in the park and travel well to tennis matches, on bicycle trips or boating parties — wherever hunger may strike on an outing away from home base.

No need to wait in line at food concessions when you have a thermo container of edibles at your side. It's more economical too.

But will your sandwiches be appetizing after the trip and you finally get around to eating them?

In the interests of picnic fans, music lovers and other hobbyists, the Bays Home Service Institute of Chicago conducted tests with various breads to learn which ones best retain flavor and contour in sandwiches prepared hours before eating time.

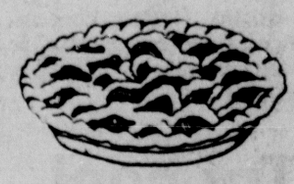
Bays' research was based on falvor; texture; compatibility with sandwich spreads, meats, cheeses and other fillings; ease of preparation, and keepability.

Two pumpernickels, the very dark Westphalian variety and the lighter Danish type, scored high in flavor retention and complemented a wide selection of ready-to-serve sandwich spreads, both mild and sharp cheeses, corned beef, hams and sausages.

Full-bodied pumpernickels also retained their smooth textures. Crusts remained tender and did not separate from the main bread. Tendency to become soggy was reduced, making them easy to hold and eat. Because of their almost square shape, they are easy to butter, fill, cut and wrap for travel.

While pumpernickels keep for about 30 days refrigerated and do not readily spoil at room temperature, the Bays Home Service Institute cautions that butter, cream cheese, mayonnaise, salad dressings and other ingredients do not keep well at warm temperatures. Therefore it is essential to wrap sandwiches for a trip in plastic wrap or foil and pack them in thermo containers.

Thermo containers also are convenient for carrying beverages. Bays suggests pickles, olives, celery and other relishes be transported in covered jars in the same thermo container.



Coffee: drip may be better

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Here's news. Electric drip coffeemakers are overtaking the old-fashioned percolators in sales. They make far better coffee, according to experienced experts.

Their advance on the market is due to the fact that they not only produce less bitter coffee but also produce it more quickly and the appliance is easier to clean.

That is the opinion of the Pan-Am Coffee Bureau, dedicated to the making of better coffee. But despite a change in attitude and use of coffeemakers, coffee consumption in the United States is dropping at between 1 and 2 percent a year. Kenneth Burgess, executive director of the Pan-Am Coffee Bureau, is convinced that is because few people ever taste good coffee.

He says, "at least 85 per cent use cream and sugar. That destroys the basic taste of coffee. And most people, sad to say, use percolators. That produces bitter coffee. The grounds are used over and over again. Water should pass over the ground coffee only once. That is why drip is the only good method."

He does not think health scares have influenced the public. "Charges that coffee produces cancer, gastric upsets and heart attacks have never been proved. We watch carefully. Maybe some people, about 5 per cent, are allergic to caffeine. But for the general public coffee drinking is safe. I'd say between eight and ten cups a day wouldn't hurt anyone." Some doctors would disagree with his comment on the eight to ten cups.

Burgess is optimistic about the effects of the present inflation on coffee drinking, despite the recorded drop of about 2 per cent annually.

"Look at the price of cola drinks and other carbonated beverages today. Sky high. How many youngsters can afford them? But coffee at home costs only about two cents a cup.

If you want a cold drink, try iced coffee, but make it right. Double strength, not the breakfast coffee. And for best results pour it hot over ice cubes. It is a wonderfully cooling drink."

Kenneth Anderson, director of the Coffee Information Center in New York, believes the present crisis is hurting coffee sales

"Today is not like the '30s. The people would gather around a pot of coffee and discuss their troubles together. It gave them a sense of hope. More or less European. But today, our society is largely mobile, nervous and on the go. And soft drinks are easier to pick up, open anywhere and drink on the run, if you like.

Our modern young people solve their problems such as no job in sight and rising costs of food by picking up a six-pack, jumping in the car and driving off, a can open and ready. Movement, not placidity, is the note of salvation today."

Souffles

Some recipes for cheese souffles call for beating the egg yolks until thick and pale colored, but this isn't necessary. Results are good when the whole egg yolks are simply whisked into the white sauce.

Have pie, will travel... to a picnic

It's a picnic and you're invited along with a covered dish.

For your culinary contribution to the festivities, consider this unusual picnic pie recipe.

Based on the traditional Italian treat, Torta Rustica, this delicious cold pie has an interesting international mix of flavors. The basic cheese-and-egg mixture is made with two favorite Italian cheeses, ricotta and mozzarella, as well as pieces of peppy salami or ham.

To this basic mixture is added an American touch of ingenuity — instant onion soup mix to give the pie a zesty onion flavor. This highly versatile instant soup mix is added in the easiest way possible — right from the envelope — and quickly is mixed in with the other ingredients. It's all the seasoning you need to create this hearty main dish. To make the pie perfectly portable, it is baked in a springform pan and then carried safely to the picnic grounds right in the pan, tucked into an insulated carry-all. Sliced into wedges and eaten out of hand, it's delightful picnic fare.

Fresh fruit and a thermos of refreshing iced tea are appropriate accompaniments for this truly easy-traveling picnic.

PICNIC PIE

- 2 envelopes onion soup
- 2 pounds ricotta or creamed cottage cheese (about 4 cups)
- 3 eggs
- 1 pound salami or cooked ham, diced (about 3 cups)
- ½ pound mozzarella cheese, diced (about 1½ cups)
- ¼ cup finely chopped parsley
- Pastry for 3 single crust pies

Preheat oven to 370 degrees.

In large bowl, combine instant onion soup, ricotta cheese, and 2 eggs. Blend in salami, mozzarella cheese, and parsley.

Roll 2/3 pastry to 16-inch circle; press onto bottom and sides of 10-inch springform pan. Brush with part of remaining egg, lightly beaten. Pour in cheese filling.

Roll remaining pastry; cut into strips and form lattice top on cheese filling. Turn down pastry from sides of pan to form rim. Brush lattice with remaining egg. Bake 1 hour or until golden brown. Cool; then chill. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Try cool summer lunches

Cool creamy cottage cheese is a good beginning for summer sandwich lunches.

When planned, a sandwich is a nutritious, balanced mini meal in itself. Including bread, a high protein food like cottage cheese and fresh vegetables makes the balancing easy.

This appetizing patio lunch features an open face cottage cheese BLT sandwich with some extra touches.

To be different and delicious mix cottage cheese with green onion, alfalfa sprouts and herbs. Serve it on toasted whole grain bread and top with fresh tomato and crisp bacon. It's a delight to the eye as well as taste buds! The creamy cooler to serve alongside is a blender frappe of milk, yogurt and banana. This is an excellent breakfast drink, too. During summer take advantage of all the available fresh fruits and make up your own blender dairy concoctions. With the many kinds of milk, ice cream and yogurt to choose from the possibilities are unlimited.

Rely on nutritious, healthful dairy foods to make those small meals and snacks valuable contributions to the total daily diet. In summer, meals tend to be more casual and even spur of the moment. Keeping the refrigerator stocked with ready to eat, wholesome foods is the answer to the summer snacking syndrome. Cold, refreshing dairy products like cottage cheese and other cheeses, yogurt, ice cream and all the fluid milks are excellent foods to keep on hand and they appeal to the whole family.

COTTAGE CHEESE BLT SANDWICH

- 1 cup small curd cottage cheese
- ¼ cup chopped green onion
- ½ cup alfalfa sprouts, optional
- ½ teaspoon salad herbs or oregano
- Salt and pepper
- 2 slices whole grain bread, buttered
- Lettuce
- 2 large slices tomato
- 4 slices bacon, cooked and drained

Mix cheese, onion, sprouts and salad herbs. Add salt and pepper to taste. Top buttered bread or toast with lettuce. Spoon cheese mixture onto lettuce. Top with tomato and bacon. Garnish with onion, if desired. Makes 2 servings.

BANANA YOGURT FRAPPE

- 1 cup milk
- 1 (8-ounce) carton plain yogurt
- 1½ cups sliced banana
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon honey

Combine ingredients in electric blender. Blend until smooth and thick. Makes 3 cups.

BROILED COTTAGE CHEESE SANDWICH

- 2 english muffins, whole wheat if available
- ½ pint cottage cheese
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 4 green pepper rings
- 2 tomato slices, halved
- Lemon pepper

Split and toast muffins. Mix cheese with onion. Divide onto muffin halves, spreading to edges. Top each with green pepper ring and piece of tomato. Sprinkle generously with lemon pepper. Place on shallow pan. Broil about 4 inches from the heat until heated through and cheese begins to melt. Makes 4 open face sandwiches.

Frankburgers: a delicious combination

Hot dogs and hamburger! Together! With barbecue sauce!

Everyone in the family will ask for this snappy, flavorful supper again next week. Quick to prepare, Frankburgers are nutritious and economical. Each serving provides more than one-third of the adult recommended daily dietary allowance of protein, and costs only 40¢.

Frankburgers

1 lb. ground beef
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1/3 cup minced onion
¼ cup milk
1 egg
1 tablespoon snipped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 lb. frankfurters (8)

Mix ground beef with remaining ingredients, except frankfurters. Gently shape in one of the following ways:

Divide meat mixture into 8 portions; shape into balls. Brown in 1 tablespoon melted shortening. Simmer in Hot Barbecue Sauce 10 minutes. Slash frankfurters at 1-in. intervals. Simmer until heated through. Curl into semicircle. To serve, place a meatball in center of each frankfurter; top with sauce, or:

Divide meat mixture into 8 portions; shape around frankfurter, leaving ends of franks exposed. Broil 7 to 8 minutes, turning once, until meat is cooked.

Serves 8.

Hot Barbecue Sauce

2 tablespoons butter
1/3 cup chopped onion
1 can tomato sauce
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup bottled barbecue sauce

Melt butter in skillet. Stir in green pepper and onion; cook until onion is transparent. Stir in remaining ingredients.

'Dip delight' with peaches

We're now well into the peach season and the crop is beautiful, promising to be in excellent supply through September.

In fact, California peach growers have estimated this year's crop to be the largest ever in the industry's history.

Such favorite peach varieties as Redtop, Hedhaven, Fay Elberta, Suncrest, Rio Oso Gem and Fayette will be in our markets now through August.

Fresh California peaches are great "dunkables" for fondue. Select peaches with an overall creamy yellow or golden background color to the skin. The deeper and more uniform the yellow, the riper the peach. When peaches yield to gentle hand pressure, they're ready to eat and slice easily into thick juicy wedges for delicious fondue dippers.

The recipe calls for peeling and slicing the peaches ahead of time. To peel fresh California peaches, just dip them in boiling water for about 30 seconds, then into cold water. The skins will slip right off. Then, as you slice them, drop the peaches into a bowl and toss with an ascorbic acid mixture or, if you prefer, lemon, lime or orange juice to keep the bright "peachy" color fresh.

When you're ready to serve, arrange the peach slices with other fresh summer fruits on a platter with one or more fondues in the center of the table so guests can help themselves. Two of the fondues, Chocolate and Vanilla, are served hot in a fondue pot or chafing dish. The Strawberry Fondue, served cold, makes a nice contrast. All are easy to prepare ahead and fun for guests and hostess alike to enjoy.

For additional existing ways to use and serve fresh California fruits this summer, write for your free copy of a colorful 48-page booklet. Prepared by the growers of California fruits, this beautifully illustrated booklet contains more than 100 tested recipes. Please send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to "FRUITS OF SUMMER," P. O. Box 4640, Sacramento, CA 95825.

How to choose cantaloupe

Just as people love strawberry festivals where the only dish served is soup plates full of strawberry shortcake, there are people who make a summer's meal of cantaloupe — the golden half, filled to brimming with ice cream.

It's that fine time of year again when cantaloupes come rolling in to market, a great deal of good eating for the money.

Know how to pick a perfect cantaloupe and when it is at its best to serve. The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association is ready with some expert advice.

First of all, do not expect to find ready-to-eat cantaloupes at the store. If they have been shipped a long way, as most are, they must be picked while firm. Yet at full slip they have developed their full sugar content and need only to soften. This process may take three or four days at room temperature. Remember that and try to buy your cantaloupes ahead of when you'll be serving them, or keep some on hand at different stages of ripening.

Disappointment with cantaloupes is usually owing to eating them too soon. Give them time to take on a yellow appearance and acquire their distinctive aroma. Everyone knows how good that is and recognizes it, a real fruit-y smell. When your cantaloupes are ripe, refrigerate them if they are not to be eaten immediately.

An unusual and delightful way to serve cantaloupes is mixed with ham in a salad. It's an idea that comes from Italy where melon and prosciutto is one of the most famous of all first courses. You may serve the salad two ways, using our recipes, mixed in melon bowls with cubes of ham in a delicious dressing, or served in slices with rolls of sliced ham, and dressing offered separately. Both are very delicious main dish salads for summer.

Few people realize how nourishing cantaloupes are. A half cantaloupe 5 inches in diameter provides more than the daily recommended allowance of vitamin A for an adult, and 100 per cent of the recommended vitamin C.

TWO-WAY HAM AND CANTALOUPE SALADS

Herb-Lemon Dressing

½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup sour cream
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped chives
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

In small bowl mix all ingredients.

Salad Platter

1 cantaloupe
1 pound sliced cooked ham
Watercress

Cut cantaloupe in half, remove seeds, and cut in thin wedges; cut off peel. Roll ham slices. For each serving, alternate cantaloupe wedges and ham rolls on salad plate. Garnish with watercress and serve with Herb-Lemon Dressing.

Makes: 4 servings.

Mixed Salad

1 cantaloupe
2 cups cubed cooked ham
1 cup chopped celery
Salad greens

Cut cantaloupe in half and remove seeds. With a melon ball cutter or round measuring spoon, cut into balls. In large bowl combine cantaloupe balls, ham and celery. Add Herb-Lemon Dressing and mix well. Cover and chill until ready to serve. To serve, turn onto platter lined with salad greens.

Makes: 4 servings.

Squash perks up the summer

Home-grown vegetables deserve very special treatment in the kitchen.

Here, in ample time for the home harvest, are two new vegetable recipes that provide superb settings for home-grown squash, tomatoes and green peppers.

Summer Squash Italiano is a meatless skillet dish that has a satisfying barbecue flavor. Its savory sauce can be made quickly and easily with a packaged spaghetti sauce mix.

Stir fried peppers and tomatoes combine two favorite home-grown vegetables in an Oriental stir-fried recipe. Perky flavor of Worcestershire sauce adds just enough flavor to highlight fresh vegetables.

Both recipes are quick-cooking to keep the vegetables at their peak flavor.

Summer Squash Italiano

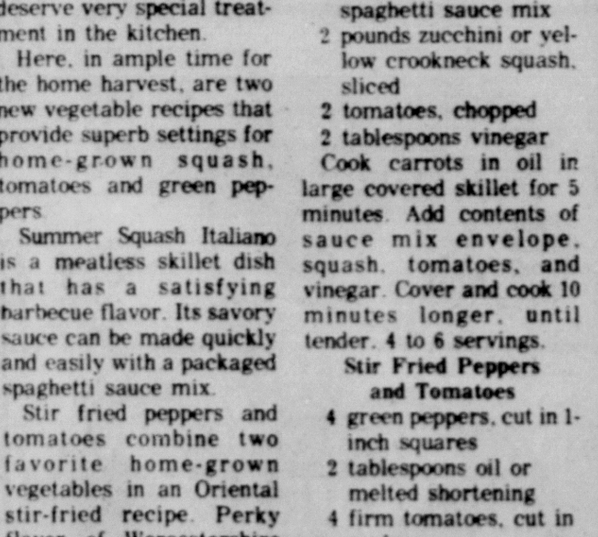
2 carrots, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons oil
1 envelope (1½-oz.) spaghetti sauce mix
2 pounds zucchini or yellow crookneck squash, sliced
2 tomatoes, chopped
2 tablespoons vinegar

Cook carrots in oil in large covered skillet for 5 minutes. Add contents of sauce mix envelope, squash, tomatoes, and vinegar. Cover and cook 10 minutes longer, until tender. 4 to 6 servings.

Stir Fried Peppers and Tomatoes

4 green peppers, cut in 1-inch squares
2 tablespoons oil or melted shortening
4 firm tomatoes, cut in wedges
3 tablespoons Worcestershire Sauce
Croutons, if desired

Cook peppers in oil in large skillet 5 to 10 minutes, until tender-crisp. Add tomatoes and Worcestershire sauce; cook and stir 4 minutes, just until hot. Sprinkle with croutons. 4 to 5 servings.



Q: "How can I change my dog's diet?"

A: With prices rising, that's a common question today. Many dog owners want to switch to foods more reasonably priced, but they're concerned their dog may not like it nor get the nutrition he requires. Those who have switched to Blue Mountain Super Meat Loaf, Home Style Stew and Chicken 'n Liver 'n Egg find they save 7¢ to 10¢ per can compared to other leading brands. And their dogs get tastes they love and the complete 100% nutrition they need. But go slowly when changing dog foods. Mix a little of the new food with the old for a few days, gradually eliminating the old. By then, your dog will love the new food in his bowl. And you'll love the savings in your budget.

How about giving chicken wings a try barbecue style sometime

It's so easy to fall into food shopping habits and always buy the same things, especially in the meat department. But that's not usually the way to save money.

Key to lower cost meats is to look for those that are not familiar to you. They often have lower price tags than the well-known steaks, chops, and breast of chicken.

Chicken wings are a good buy at market but they are not bought as often as other parts because people do not know how to cook them for variety in the meal. Barbecued chicken wings are a delicious way to serve this less familiar chicken part. Wings are marinated in a mixture that combines pineapple juice, soy sauce and ginger. Then they are baked and brushed with the marinade which has been boiled down to make a thick and savory basting sauce.

In your experience at the meat counter, you may have noticed that chicken giblets are sold separately. Giblets are the hearts and gizzards. They have wonderful flavor. You may have only known them in rich and flavorful giblet gravy but that is too limited a use for such an agreeable meat. Giblet and Meatball Stew makes use of this good meat in a hearty main dish, well suited to family appetites.

Giblets are combined with ground beef balls and the flavors of both are well-emphasized with flavor enhancer.

BARBECUED CHICKEN WINGS

3 cups pineapple juice
1/3 cup soy sauce
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon flavor enhancer
3 pounds chicken wings

In a large bowl, combine pineapple juice, soy sauce, ginger and flavor enhancer. Marinate the chicken wings in this mixture in the refrigerator for 5 hours or more. Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Place wings on rack in shallow pan and bake 40 minutes. Meanwhile transfer marinade to a large saucepan and bring to boil. Boil 15 minutes, or until cooked down to a thick basting sauce. Baste wings with sauce every ten minutes until done.

Makes: 4-6 servings.

GIBLET AND MEATBALL STEW

1 pound chicken giblets
1 teaspoon flavor enhancer, divided
6 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
1 medium onion, chopped
3 ribs celery, sliced
1½ cups water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 pound ground beef
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 egg, beaten
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
⅓ cup dry red wine
2 medium tomatoes, cut in wedges
1 3 ounce can sliced mushrooms or ½ pound fresh mushrooms, sauteed

Rinse giblets and dry on paper towel; sprinkle with ½ teaspoon Accent. In a large saucepan, heat 4 tablespoons butter, add giblets and cook until browned. Remove from pan and set aside. Place remaining butter in saucepan and cook onion and celery until they are lightly browned. Return giblets to saucepan and add water and salt. Cover and simmer over low heat for 1 hour. In a bowl, mix ground beef, ½ teaspoon Accent, bread crumbs, egg and thyme. Form into 1-inch balls. When giblets have simmered for an hour, add meatballs and wine; simmer covered for 30 minutes. Add tomatoes and mushrooms, continue to simmer uncovered for 45 minutes, until sauce cooks down to a gravy. Makes: 6 servings.

Dash of salt
Ground nutmeg, cinnamon or allspice to taste
6 fresh California peaches, peeled and thickly sliced

Pour 1½ cups of the cream into a fondue pot. Add powdered sugar and heat slowly on low heat, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Blend remaining cream with cornstarch. Gradually add to fondue pot, stirring until thickened. Simmer 2 or 3 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla, salt and spice of choice. Place pot on fondue burner. Using fondue forks, dip peach slices into bubbling sauce.

Note: Leftover vanilla sauce is a delicious topping for sliced fresh fruit and ice cream.

Makes 6 servings.

Strawberry

1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup fresh strawberry puree
¼ to 1/3 cup sugar, depending on sweetness desired
6 fresh California peaches, peeled and thickly sliced

In bowl, blend sour cream, strawberry puree and sugar. Use at once, or if desired, chill until serving time. Use as a cold fondue dipping peach slices into sauce.

Makes 6 servings.

Chocolate - Peanut Butter

1 cup semi-sweet chocolate morsels (6-ounce package)
½ cup creamy or chunk-style peanut butter
6 fresh California peaches, peeled and thickly sliced

In fondue pot, warm cream slightly. Stir in chocolate chips, heat until melted. Add peanut butter; stir until smooth. Place pot on fondue burner. Using fondue fork, dip peach slices into bubbling sauce.

Makes 6 servings.

slice the fruit the way you would if you were serving it immediately.

If you're using syrup, dissolve the required amount of sugar in cold or hot water, then pack the fruit in the liquid. Make sure the syrup is cool before packing and make sure it covers the fruit so the top pieces will not change color and flavor.

If you're using a sugar pack, put the cut fruit in a bowl or pan, sprinkle the required amount of sugar over the fruit and mix gently until the juice is drawn out of the fruit and the sugar is dissolved. Put the fruit and juice in containers and seal.

Unsweetened fruit can be packed just as is or crush and packed in its own juice, without sugar.

Vegetables also should be washed, peeled and trimmed. They also should be heated or blanched to stop the action of enzymes in the vegetables.

The best way to heat most vegetables is in boiling water. Use a special blancher or fit a wire basket into a large kettle and add the cover.

Use at least one gallon of boiling water for each pound of prepared vegetable. Put the vegetables in the wire basket or blanching basket and lower into the boiling water. Start timing immediately. The length of time required for heating varies from vegetable to vegetable, but generally is only a few minutes.

After heating, plunge the basket of vegetables in cold water to stop cooking.

A good buy: mini-turkeys

Mini-roast turkey gives maxi-meals, which is good news these budget conscious days.

Plump, tender California broiler-fryer turkeys, weighing 7 to 8 pounds, will serve a generous turkey dinner for 6. There should be trimmings left over for a small pot of turkey soup, perhaps a little turkey to cream and serve over cornbread for a shortcake, and even a few tidbits to make into a sandwich.

The recipe for mini-roast turkey features a special treatment popular with Western cooks. Seasoned mushroom-butter is spread under the breast skin before roasting. This helps keep meat juicy and extra flavorful as the delicate flavors of butter, mushrooms, dill and nutmeg permeate the turkey during cooking.

Another Western touch is to garnish the golden bird with fresh herb sprigs and plump spiced peaches.

California broiler-fryer turkeys are especially popular with the young homemaker because they are so easy to roast and they seem just the right size for modest budgets.

MIN-ROAST TURKEY

1 California broiler-fryer turkey, about 7 to 8 pounds
3 tablespoons soft butter
½ teaspoon onion salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
¼ teaspoon dill weed
1/16 teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup finely chopped fresh mushrooms
1 small onion
Few celery tops
½ cup chicken or turkey broth
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Carefully loosen skin of turkey breast using point of small sharp knife to start from neck end, then gently push fingers or plastic handle of rubber spatula to loosen skin away from breast meat. Mix 2 tablespoons soft butter with onion salt, pepper, dill weed and nutmeg. Mix in chopped mushrooms. With small spatula, spread the butter mixture over breast meat under skin. Place onion and celery tops in body cavity. Skewer opening, and tie legs. Turn wing tips back under body. Place on roasting pan, and rub skin with remaining tablespoon butter. Roast in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 minutes, until turkey begins to brown. Reset thermostat to moderately slow (325 degree F.), and continue roasting for about 1½ hours, basting occasionally with mixture of broth and lemon juice. Serves 8.

Pickle some Bell Peppers

Crunchy and colorful, they provide texture and color to salads and casseroles.

Since bell peppers will keep only a few days without developing decay spots, Dr. George K. York, food science and technology specialist, Cooperative Extension, Division of Agriculture Sciences, University of California, Davis, offers the following recipes for preserving them in vinegar and oil — a good way to keep a homegrown crop when you cannot use fresh peppers fast enough. Dr. York also offers a recipe for pickling hot peppers.

PICKLED HOT PEPPERS
(Makes 8 pints)

4 quarts hot peppers
4 teaspoons salt
9 cups vinegar
9 cups water

Wash peppers thoroughly. Remove cores, seeds, and stems of large peppers. Cut as desired or leave whole. Small peppers may be left whole with stems intact.

Heat salt, water, and vinegar to simmering point (150 degrees to 160 degrees F.). Vinegar should NOT be allowed to boil.

Pack peppers tightly into clean canning jars. Pour hot vinegar over peppers to top of jar. If oil is desired, leave ¼-inch space and pour oil over vinegar. Seal jars with lids that have just been scalded in boiling water. Process in boiling water bath at a gentle boil for 20 minutes.

BELL PEPPERS IN VINEGAR
(Makes 8 pints)

4 quarts bell peppers (cut in quarters or eighths)
18 cups vinegar

Wash peppers. Remove core, seeds, and stems. Cut as desired or leave whole after coring. Pack into hot sterilized jars.

Heat 10 cups vinegar to simmering point (150 degrees to 160 degrees F.). Pour hot vinegar over peppers, covering well. Let them stand loosely sealed for several days, then pour off vinegar and replace with fresh vinegar (about 8 cups) that has been brought to a boil. Add salt to taste. Seal with lids that have just been scalded in boiling water.

If oil is desired, add fresh vinegar to ¾-to ⅞-inch of jar top. Add olive oil to the top. The peppers will be coated with oil when they pass through the oil layer as you use the peppers.

BELL PEPPERS IN OIL
(Makes 8 pints)

4 quarts bell peppers (cut in quarters or eighths)
10 cups vinegar
1 to 1½ quarts oil

Wash peppers. Dip in boiling water for 1 minute. Remove cores, seeds, and stems. Cut as desired, or leave the small ones whole after coring.

Heat vinegar to boiling point. Pour over the peppers and allow to stand at least 24 hours. Lift peppers out of the vinegar. Pack in hot, sterilized jars.

Pineapple Chicken summer treat

Songwriters may have said summertime living was easy, but you may have trouble believing it, particularly now when summer activities are reaching a peak.

During these times, you need a recipe that goes together quickly, looks good, is inexpensive and, most important of all, nutritious.

Solution is "Baked Pineapple Chicken," featuring easy-on-the-budget chicken and zucchini which is in abundant supply at this time of year.

In this sweet-sour combination, canned Hawaiian pineapple slices provide the "sweet", while the gingery lemon sauce stirs up in a matter of minutes and offers the "sour".

Here's the secret for keeping zucchini and pineapple crunchy. Add them to the chicken the last 15 minutes of cooking, drench with sauce and handle gently so they keep their firm, attractive shapes.

BAKED PINEAPPLE CHICKEN

- 1 tablespoon flour
- ½ teaspoon onion powder
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- 8 pieces frying chicken (2 half breasts, 2 thighs, 2 drumsticks, 2 wings)
- 1 (1 pound 4 ounce) can pineapple slices
- ½ cup syrup from pineapple
- ½ cup soy sauce
- 2½ tablespoons brown sugar (packed)
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- ½ teaspoon prepared mustard
- ½ teaspoon pressed garlic (2 large cloves)
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 4 small zucchini (¾ pound)

Mix flour, onion powder and ginger together. Dredge chicken pieces with mixture. Arrange skin side up in shallow baking dish. Bake in very hot oven (450 degrees F) 15 minutes. Meanwhile, drain pineapple, reserving ½ cup syrup. Combine ½ cup syrup with soy sauce, brown sugar, lemon juice, cornstarch, mustard, garlic and salt in a small saucepan. Heat, stirring, until sauce thickens slightly. Brush half the sauce over chicken pieces. Reset thermostat to moderate (350 degrees F). Bake 15 to 20 minutes. Trim and cut zucchini in ½-inch diagonal slices. Cover with boiling water and let stand 10 minutes. Drain. Add zucchini and pineapple slices to chicken. Continue baking and brushing with remaining sauce, until chicken and zucchini are tender, about 15 minutes longer. Skim off any surface fat before serving. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

History of southern cooking

By GAYNOR MADDOX

A change in diet, like any other change, often rekindles interest in life, particularly during these hot summer days. So let's look at Southern food as an addition to the daily diet.

True Southern cooking is of course, something you find only in homes throughout the South. Creole cooking is more or less confined to Louisiana but many of the ingredients are available all over the country. Particularly okra which to many people is the essence of Creole cooking.

The Southern Vegetable Council says that several other Southern foods are available all year round. They are processed, frozen and shipped all over the United States. Among them, besides okra, are Southern field beans (black-eyed peas, field peas with snaps, crowder peas and butter peas), greens (collard, kale, mustard and turnip greens), speckled butter beans and yellow summer or crookneck squash.

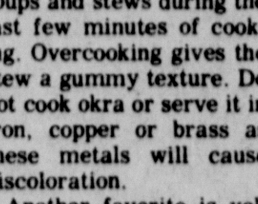
Of these foods from Southern gardens, only squash is indigenous to North America. All the others originated in Europe, Asia or Africa.

Okra is the most popular of Southern vegetables. As one of the basics of Creole cooking, it was probably introduced to America in the early 1700s by the French colonists who settled in Louisiana. This green, multi-sided pod is picked when young and tender. When added to Southern-style dishes it provides thickening and a distinctive flavor to soups, gumbos, seafood mixtures or to simple vegetable side dishes such as stewed tomatoes.

It can be boiled or fried (in shallow or deep fat) and seasoned to taste. For Southern-fried okra — a popular side dish — partially defrost frozen okra and dip pieces in beaten eggs. Coat with cracker crumbs or corn meal, then quick fry.

Okra is best when cooked quickly or added to soups and stews during the last few minutes of cooking. Overcooking gives the stew a gummy texture. Do not cook okra or serve it in iron, copper or brass as these metals will cause discoloration.

Another favorite is yellow summer squash or crooknecked squash. Also when Southerners speak of "a mess of greens" they refer to collard, kale, mustard and turnip greens. And they love them. Hoppin' John is ham, broth and black-eyed peas. Incidentally, a few handful of dried Southern peas are often thrown into the bride's lap on her wedding day to insure fertility — an interesting tidbit that indicates there is more facets to food than its preparation or eating.



Dress it up

Summer drinks look especially attractive when you frost the rims of the serving glasses. To do so, dip the rims into lemon juice to the depth of ¼ inch, then dip in powdered sugar and let stand for about 1 minute. Then chill the glasses, right side up, for about half an hour.

Minor started at top

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Wednesday, July 30, 1975

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

Unlike the majority of professional football players, Claudie Minor started at the top.

Drafted third by the NFL Denver Broncos, the one time Garey High and MSAC star moved right into a starting job as offensive tackle when Marv Montgomery was not sufficiently healed from a broken leg.

The veterans struck and stayed out of camp last year until midway through the exhibition season. This didn't make it any easier to step in against veterans when the season began.

It wasn't too surprising then that the 63, 285-pound Pomonan endured some rough going in the early part of the season.

"During the pre season, I was playing mostly against rookies," Minor recalled, "and I got into a couple of bad habits. Early in the regular season, some of the old pros took advantage of me. But I got the habits corrected and it started to come together. I was a little too eager. I should have been more patient and things would have jelled quicker."

The Broncos opened the regular season at home against the Rams last year and some of the Rams, notably defensive end Fred Dryer, got through Claudie to quarterback Charlie Johnson.

"We started Claudie out the hard way," said offensive line coach Jerry Frei. "He got educated real early. It's almost indecent to start a man the way we had to start Claudie last year.

"What you want to do," Frei continued, "is to bring him along slowly for a year's time. Spot him here and there. He learned a couple of hard lessons early in the season and we did too. But I think he meant a great deal to our football team as far as the runner is concerned.

"We're very proud of our running ability right now. We think Otis Armstrong might be the world's greatest runner and Jon Keyworth second. But the line up front had something to do with that and Claudie was a very big part of that particular area of our game."

Frei is as high on Claudie Minor's future as he possibly can be.

"Claudie has always been effective blocking the run," Frei said. "The biggest change last year was that he just developed more poise against the pass.

"I think his potential is absolutely unlimited," Frei continued. "I don't believe there's any question about that. People (coaches and scouts) seeing big people play football all have to make the same comment. The speed of Claudie's feet is outstanding. His balance is outstanding. He has great agility for a man weighing near 290 pounds.

"It's almost unbelievable. He is strong. He enjoys contact. The only limitations on Claudie are the ones he will place on himself. If he continues to improve, continues to work. If he doesn't get satisfied with his performance, but continues to improve, I can't see anything but him becoming the greatest there is."

At this stage, Claudie Minor has the necessary desire to improve and willingness to work.

"I'm never satisfied," he said. "I feel I could have done a lot better last year. I think a team should do better every year. We had a .500 season last year and I KNOW we'll do better this year."

The difference between playing college and pro football?

"It's tougher. You're playing against a different caliber of people," he replied. "The intensity, I guess, is higher. On the other hand, you're better prepared. In fact now that I'm in my second year, it doesn't seem as big a jump as I thought it would be."

What Caludie discovered was that he was a pretty good football player himself even as short on experience as he was. And he didn't let his early season difficulties shake his confidence. He was merely unhappy with his performance then and with the season on the whole.

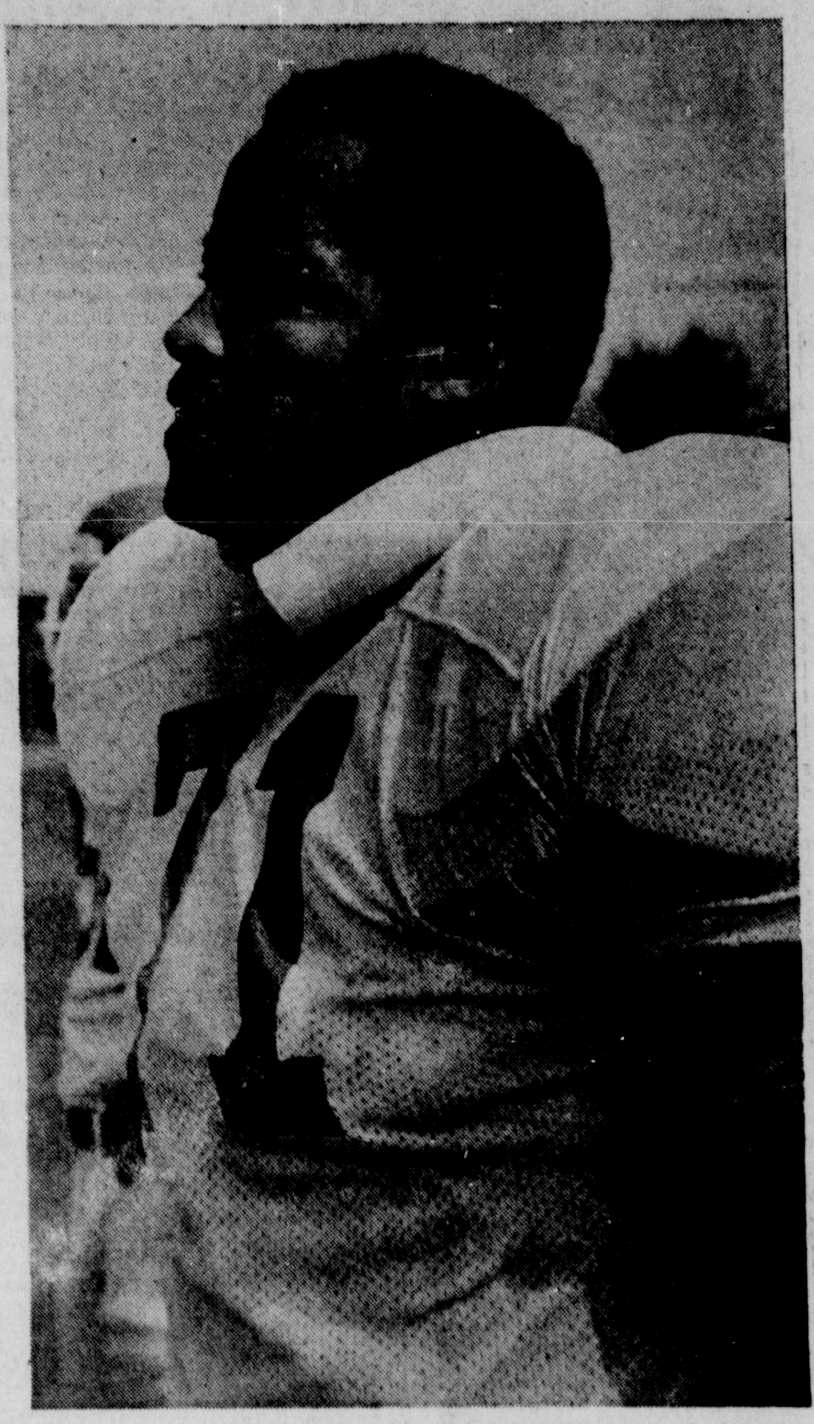
"As long as a player continues to be dissatisfied with his performance," Frei said, "he'll continue to improve and I think that's excellent. That's the way I'd like to have Claudie feel. I saw a couple of things last year that I wasn't satisfied with and he knows it. We all know he has to improve. If he was satisfied with last year's performance, he wouldn't improve."

Minor is anxious to have a rematch with the defensive lineman who gave him trouble last year.

"I was really gung ho," he recalled, "and my eagerness allowed me to get beat. Somebody like Dryer you have to be patient with rather than going after them. Elvin Bethea and Wilbur Young are among the best along with Dryer. But I'm anxious to get at all 14 teams this year."

Claudie is not the last of the Minors to play college football. Brother Curtis is looking for a great season at San Diego Mesa junior college. "They have high hopes for him," the big lineman smiled. "A defensive back, he's supposed to be a cinch for all conference and maybe all-American."

John Ralston can hardly wait.



CLAUDIE MINOR

'Blue Moon' stops L.A.

ATLANTA (AP) — John "Blue Moon" Odom changed his style of pitching and wound up with his first victory in the National League.

Odom, who came to the Atlanta Braves early in June from Cleveland and had an 0-4 mark and 9.00 earned run average before Tuesday night, limited Los Angeles to five hits before running out of gas in the ninth inning of a 4-2 victory.

It was also the first time Atlanta had ever beaten loser Andy Messersmith, 13-9.

"He pitched a whale of a game," said Dodger Manager Walter Alston. "It looks like whatever was wrong with him has been cured."

The Braves held a 4-0 lead into the ninth on run-scoring hits by Ralph Garr and Dusty Baker and Darrell Evans' 13th home run before Odom ran into trouble in the ninth.

He left with the bases loaded and two out. Reliever Elias Sosa was then greeted a two-run double before Tom House came on to get the final out.

"I had always been a three-quarter pitcher and I had been throwing too much overhand," explained Odom, who had pitched for Oakland and the Indians in the American League. Manager Clyde King noticed it and "I guess that's what was wrong with me," said Odum.

King said he had Odom pitch batting practice one day against the Braves' best hitters.

"It was a simulated game situation, and it was amazing how different he looked. Right away you could tell he was doing much better," said King. "That was about three weeks ago and we had planned to implement the new style sooner, but Blue Moon had to have that operation (hemorrhoid) and we had to delay it."

Odom faced the minimum number of batters over the first five innings and did not allow a batter to reach until Dave Lopes opened the fourth with a single. Lopes was immediately doubled off on a liner to third.

Odom struck out five and walked five.

"What a big left that win gave us," said King. "Blue Moon has worked so hard to make a comeback."

It was also a comeback of sorts for the Braves, who captured their second straight from the stumbling Dodgers after losing six of their last seven games.

Namath and Jets agree on contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath and the New York Jets have reached agreement on a new contract that could have the veteran quarterback in uniform by the end of the week.

The Jets planned a 12:30 p.m. EDT news conference at the team's National Football League training camp in nearby Hempstead, N.Y., where they will announce the new pact hammered out Monday night by Jets President Phil Iselin and Namath's attorney, Jimmy Walsh.

Though neither side would confirm it, a source close to the bargaining between the Jets and football's most famous quarterback said they had agreed on a salary of $450,000 for each of two years.

The agreement apparently does not deal with any fringe benefits, only with time and money. The contract also represents a compromise, something which neither the Jets nor Namath appeared willing to do earlier.

Namath, 32, who turned down a $4-million offer to play in the World Football League earlier this year, wanted a $1-million package spread over two years.

Iselin wanted Namath to sign a three-year deal for $400,000 a year, which would have been a $100,000 a year raise.

"We have made our top offer," Iselin said last weekend. "There is only so much juice you can get out of an orange, and there is no juice left."

Walsh replied: "Joe will not play unless he gets the figure he wants."

The length of the contract had been a key in bargaining. Namath, who earlier this month signed a multi-million dollar contract with a perfume and cosmetics manufacturing firm, did not want to commit himself past two years.

"If after that period," Namath said, "I still am of a mind, then I can always renew it."

The Jets' first preseason game is a week from Saturday in Phoenix against the Minnesota Vikings, and Namath has said he would like to play at least half the game. That, however, would seem unlikely, even if Namath begins workouts immediately.

Namath, who led the Jets to six consecutive victories at the end of last season, played his college ball at Alabama, where Bear Bryant called him "the greatest athlete I have ever coached." Namath, a 10-year veteran, has spent all his pro career with the Jets after signing a $400,000 contract on the eve of the 1965 Orange Bowl game at Miami.

Post 330 seeks Area 6 crown

La Verne Post 330's opponents this weekend in the Area 6 American Legion playoffs had best not take manager Earl Bumstead's crew lightly.

Although the Post 330'ers have a rather unimpressive 19-13-1 season mark, they seem to be peaking just in time for the playoffs. La Verne swept through the District 18 playoffs here last week and could do the same this weekend at Santa Maria.

Action in the four-team Area tourney begins Thursday at Elks Field in Santa Maria. La Verne will open against District 16 representative and host team Santa Maria at 4:30 p.m. Thursday afternoon.

Championship finals of the tourney will be held Sunday. Winner of the double-elimination affair will advance to Yountville in Northern California for the state playoffs.

"If we play like we did in winning the District title we'll be going on to Yountville," noted a confident La Verne coach Dick Salomon. "Right now, we have three top-notch starting hurlers, good defense and clutch hitting. That's going to be a tough combination to beat."

Mentors Bumstead and Salomon saw their troups win three straight in District competition at Ralph Welch Park, as Bill Bumstead, Gary Zakem and Dave Drury all hurled complete-game victories.

Not to tamper with success, La Verne figures to go with the same starting trio at Santa Maria, with Bumstead getting the call Thursday, Zakem Friday and Drury Sunday.

"Our kids are real excited about going to Santa Maria and are proud to be representing this area," Salomon points out. "Unlike some summer teams, this squad has real togetherness on it. Everybody has done a super job, including the kids who haven't played that much. We reached our first goal by taking the District. Now we go after the Area title."

Salomon listed the following as La Verne's probable starters for this weekend's playoffs: Ron Pickenpaugh (.234) 1B; Jim Richards (.292) 2B; Bruce McNaught (.362) SS; Bret Dody (.311) 3B; Drury (.339) LF; Jerry Osborne (.272) CF; Wally Pitts (.266) RF; Jerry Baird (.224) or Steve Benoit (.186) catcher.

In addition to Bumstead (6-3, 2.28 ERA), Zakem (4-2, 1.74 ERA) and Drury (4-4, 3.50 ERA), Post 330 has a pair of outstanding firemen in Ralph Ortega (2-0, 0.52 ERA) and Curt Burkhart (2-3, 3.42 ERA).

If victorious Thursday, La Verne would play Friday at 1 p.m. If Post 330 loses Thursday, Friday's gametime would be 4:30 p.m. All tourney games are slated for Santa Maria's Elks Field.

Reece hurt in practice

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams on Tuesday lost their third round draft choice of last season without ever seeing his play professionally.

Geoff Reece from Washington State, a center, was injured during practice for the All-Star game in Chicago when a teammate fell across his leg.

Flown to Los Angeles, Reece was diagnosed as having suffered torn ligaments in his left knee. Dr. Robert Kerlan ordered surgery which will be performed Wednesday at Centinela Hospital in Inglewood.

During the afternoon practice on Tuesday, the Rams worked on goal line offense and defense. Left cornerback Charlie Stukes continued his outstanding play during which he has intercepted four passes in three days.

The Rams said they would not know until after the surgery how long Reece would be out of action.

Angels lose again at home

Osteen gets well

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The way things are going for Southern California baseball fans, it almost seemed nice to see Claude Osteen win a game.

The "almost" is used because, unfortunately, Claude was pitching for the Chicago White Sox and the Pale Hose bested the Angels, 7-4 Tuesday night at Anaheim Stadium.

Osteen (6-8) was tagged for nine hits in 6 2/3 innings, but the Halos, as has been their habit most of the season, weren't able to put them together often enough to score more than two runs off Osteen who also walked four.

"I've pitched better, but I'll take the win and be happy with it."

Osteen, who bounced from the Dodgers to Houston to the St. Louis Cardinals to the American League White Sox in the last year and a half, said it took him "over a year" to get over the fact he was no longer a Dodger, was lucky enough to land in the Chicago starting rotation after drawing his outright release from the Cardinals.

"He has contributed so many different ways," Sox manager Chuck Tanner remarked. "I told him not to worry about how many games he won — just about what he did for the club.

"He's won six games and has helped us win at least half a dozen more."

The loss was the fourth in six games in the current homestand for the Angels who managed to stay out of dropping into a tie for last place in the American League west only because the Minnesota Twins lost to Kansas City.

These are troubled times around the Halo headquarters. Manager Dick Williams has never before had a team that he managed for a full season wind up under .500.

The 1975 Angels (46-59) not only seemed assured of that. But they also seem just as assured of losing a lot more games at home than they win. In the last three homestands, the Angels have posted a lowly 6-17 record. For the season, they are 20-34 at Anaheim and 26-25 on the road.

Andy Hassler (3-10) is closing in on a negative individual record. Hassler, wracked for four runs and six hits in 4 2/3 innings, suffered his ninth straight loss. He needs only one more to tie the club record held by Ken McBride.

The big lefthander has not won a game since April 29.

It looked as though Hassler had turned things around in the early part of Tuesday nights' game.

He coasted through the first three innings without allowing a hit and faced only 10 batters.

But in the fourth inning, as befits a recent member of the notorious arson squad, Hassler went up like a torch.

Bucky Dent led off with a hit. Hassler walked Ken Henderson and Deron Johnson followed with his 13th home run. Hassler got the next three batters but was right back in hot water as soon as the fifth inning got under way.

He walked Nyls Nyman, a .209 hitter and eighth man in the White Sox batting order, to lead off the inning. Brian Downing was retired on another miracle play by second baseman Jerry Remy, Nyman taking second.

Remy fielded Downing's bouncer on the shortstop side of second base and, still going away from first base, got enough on his throw to first to beat Downing for the out!

But that only delayed the second Sox explosion. Pat Kelly singled driving in Nyman. But Kelly was caught stealing on another good throw by rookie catcher Ike Hampton.

Even that much help wasn't enough for Hassler. The 6-4, 215-pound youngster walked Dent and dished up another home run pitch to Henderson. Henderson's smash went on a line over the leftfield wall barely clearing the barrier. But it was just as high when it cleared the wall as it was when it went over the infield.

That gave the Pale Hose six runs on just four hits. Chuck Hockenbery followed with 2 1/3 innings of scoreless relief. But the Sox nicked Don Kirkwood for another roundtripper, by Carlos May, in the ninth.

The Angels scored their runs in the seventh and ninth innings. They sent eight men to bat in the seventh and came up with only two runs.

There were one-out singles by Mickey Rivers and Dave Collins who advanced on Lee Stanton's ground out. Dave Chalk lined a single to center driving in the runs.

Dan Osborn replaced Osteen and Rudy Meoli ran for Chalk. Tommy Harper was hit by a pitch. When Osborn walked John Balaz to load the bases, he was replaced by Dave Hamilton who got pinch hitter Joe Lahoud to ground into the third out.

Stanton drew a one - out walk in the ninth and pinch hitter Winston Llenas singled. Harper forced Llenas, but Balaz doubled in Stanton and Harper. Ellie Rodriquez struck out to end the game.

The Halos, despite a total of 11 hits and six walks, managed only the four runs while leaving 13 on base.

ANGEL ANGLES — Nolan Ryan (11-11) faces Jim Kaat (15-7) tonight in the best match of the series. The Angels open a short seven-game road trip in Texas Friday night.

Cullen Bryant is going to court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Newest challenge to the Rozelle Rule of the National Football League comes from Cullen Bryant, a running back from Colorado who doesn't want to switch from the Los Angeles Rams to the Detroit Lions.

He goes to court again today seeking to remain in California despite the ruling by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle that sent him to the Lions.

Ron Jessie, a wide receiver who was sixth in pass catching for the NFL last season, played out his contract option with the Detroit Lions and became a free agent.

Los Angeles signed him to a multi-year contract and thus owed Detroit under the Rozelle Rule of the NFL. When the two teams couldn't agree on compensation, Commissioner Rozelle decided on Bryant.

The player brought suit in Federal Court seeking a temporary restraining order.

The NFL already is defending a suit brought by the NFL Players Association in Minneapolis. The suit seeks to end the compensation rule, claiming it abridges the rights of players.

"I can't understand how Rozelle would make this ruling," said Bryant's attorney Ed Masry. "This is the first time a veteran player has been involved and the rule already has been challenged."

Federal Judge Warren J. Ferguson heard opening arguments Tuesday and then set today for extensive oral arguments.

Masry said a temporary restraining order could mean that Bryant might play the 1975 season with the Rams although he has been forced to leave training camp pending the legal decision.

Disposition of the case would take months if the restraining order is granted.

The compensation rule of the NFL requires that a team losing a player to another team just get adequate repayment.

In Washington, D. C., the Players Association criticized Rozelle on the Bryant case and called the commissioner's decision "arbitrary and capricious."

"First, the Lions do not deserve any compensation for Jessie who performed brilliantly for them, and second, the only reason for naming Bryant was to discourage teams from signing players who have played out their option," the association said.

Under NFL contracts, a player who signs also must agree to a second year under the option clause. Thus he must play at least two seasons to become a free agent, even though his contract is for only one year.

The association said it would do whatever it could to cooperate with Bryant's lawyers.

Bryant starred for Colorado and in 1973 became a top draft choice with the Rams who made him a defensive back and kick return specialist. In 1974 he was switched to running back but carried only 10 times for 24 yards. But in his two seasons, he has returned 36 kickoffs for 986 yards, an average of 27.3.

HOMERS AT HOME

CLEVELAND (AP) It's been a long time beween Frank Robinson's first and second home runs of the American League season. But when the manager of the Cleveland Indians hits a four-bagger they seem to mean something special.

Robinson's first homer as Indian pilot came opening day in Cleveland. He delivered his second and third four baggers against Frank Tanana of the California Angels on May 21 in Cleveland. They were needed in Cleveland's 3-2 victory.

First baseman Mike Sloan of DeSoto, Mo., will captain Army's 1976 baseball team.

Phillies climbing on Bucs

The Pittsburgh Pirates aren't as tough as they look...at least the way the Philadelphia Phillies see them.

The Phillies have an uncanny hold on Pittsburgh and because of it, the Pirates are losing their grip in the National League East.

Behind rookie Tom Underwood, the Phillies defeated Pittsburgh 5-1 Tuesday night for their ninth straight victory over the Pirates and climbed within 3½ games of the frontrunners.

"Tonight's game is an important one," said Dave Cash. "It will mean the difference between leaving Pittsburgh 2½ or 4½ games behind."

The Pirates haven't beaten the Phillies since April 16, when they finished a three-game sweep of their Pennsylvania neighbors. Since then, it's been downright bizarre the way the Phillies have handled the Pirates.

"That's the only thing that can stop the Pirates—good pitching," said Philadelphia second baseman Dave Cash. "If you don't get good pitching, they'll kill you. They've got some ungodly bats."

"There's no pressure on us because nobody but ourselves believe we're going to win it," said Underwood. "I'm not saying we will win it—but we certainly believe we can."

In the other National League games, the San Francisco Giants turned back the Cincinnati Reds 4-2; the Atlanta Braves whipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2; the Houston Astros stopped the San Diego Padres 6-2; the Chicago Cubs nipped the Montreal Expos 4-3 and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the New York Mets 5-3 in the first game of a twinight doubleheader before losing the second game, 11-6.

Underwood pitched a four-hitter and doubled in a pair of runs to help Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh. Underwood, a 21-year-old southpaw, stroked his double to left center to key a four-run fourth-inning spurt off losing pitcher Dock Ellis, 7-7.

Giants 4, Reds 2

Bobby Murcer's two-run double in the ninth inning carried San Francisco past Cincinnati as the Reds failed for the 45th straight time to get a complete game from their pitching staff.

Von Joshua singled and stole second and Dave Rader walked to set the stage for Murcer's double to the wall in right-center field.

Fred Norman made a strong bid to become the first Cincinnati pitcher to complete a game since June 11, but he left in the eighth in favor of Rawly Eastwick. Jim Barr, 9-8, got the victory.

Astros 6, Padres 2

Jose Cruz' run-scoring double highlighted a three-run Houston uprising in the fifth inning and the Astros defeated San Diego, ending a five-game losing streak. Houston starter Dave Roberts, 6-11, allowed only four hits in winning his seventh game against the Padres in nine career decisions.

Cubs 4, Expos 3

John Summers' bases-loaded pinch single in the eighth inning scored Jose Cardenal with the tie-breaking run and another run scored on a forceout, lifting Chicago over Montreal. The Expos managed a run in the ninth on singles by Pete Mackanin and Jose Morales and a sacrifice fly by Pepe Mangual before Oscar Zamora saved the game for Darold Knowles, 4-5.

Cardinals 5-6, Mets 3-11

Ron Fairly drove in three runs with two singles and his fifth homer of the season to lead St. Louis to its first-game victory over New York. Del Unser collected four base hits and drove in three runs to lead the Mets' triumph in the second game.

Williams will join Warriors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "It came down to a case of years, not dollars," says the attorney for Gus Williams, the USC basketball star who just signed a multiyear contract with the Golden State Warriors.

"One team wanted us to sign for a very long time," said attorney Howard Slusher.

Williams, the Pacific-8 Conference's leading scorer last year, signed Tuesday for an undisclosed amount and for an undisclosed number of years with the reigning National Basketball Association champions.

"Coach Al Attles told me the Warriors wouldn't have drafted me if they thought I couldn't help," said the 6-2, 170-pound guard. "He believes in the whole team concept and so do I. He said I would have every chance to prove I can play."

Williams, who averaged 21.2 points per game last season, was the Warriors' second-round selection and was drafted 20th in the NBA.

Wood takes charge

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There's a lot of pressure on Willie Wood.

There would be pressure on anybody chosen head coach of a pro football team three days before the regular season opener.

But Willie Wood has the added pressure of being the first black coach in modern pro football.

"My original idea was to play the (race) down," Wood said Tuesday when he was named field boss of the World Football League Philadelphia Bell.

"But obviously the mere fact that I'm black means I feel I have to do a good job.

"If I can put forth all the energy I feel I have in store, if we can develop a winning team here . . . maybe somehwere down the road they'll think of the Philadelphia Bell as a winning team and not me as a black coach."

The former All-Pro safety with the National Football League Green Bay Packers is pro football's first black field boss since Fritz Pollard led several teams in the 1920s when the NFL was in its infancy.

Wood joined the Bell this year as defensive coordinator. He succeeds Ron Waller, who quit as head coach last week.

"Willie Wood is a professional who happens to be a black," said Calvin Hill, a former running back for the NFL Dallas Cowboys who is now with the WFL Hawaiians. "But as a black, I'm proud that Willie Wood's skin is the same color as mine. This is a tremendous moment in my life."

The Bell opens its season against the Hawaiians here Saturday night, which doesn't give the new coach much time to get ready.

"It's going to be very, very rough," admitted the 39-year-old Wood. "I think I ought to be working right now...I'm counting on the team to help me through." He said he hoped to hire a coaching staff in the next several days.

Wood, a native of Washington, D.C., was a quarterback during his college days at the University of Southern California. He was ignored in the 1960 pro draft, but he wrote a letter to the late Vince Lombardi, then coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers.

Lombardi signed Wood as a free agent and converted him to defensive back. The gamble paid off: the hard-hitting Wood made All-Pro four times, leading the league in pass interceptions in 1962. He had 48 interceptions during his 12 years with the Packers, two steals for touchdowns.

He played in six NFL championship games and the first two Super Bowls, in 1966 and 1967, both Green Bay victories.

Wood said it was Lombardi who interested him in coaching. He said he planned to follo Lombardi to the Washington Redskins as a coach when his playing career ended. But Lombardi's death in 1970 disrupted those plans, so when Wood left the Packers in 1972 he joined the NFL San Diego Chargers as backfield coach.

Wood said he hopes to install some of Lombardi's methods at the Bell — particularly the ball control offense.

Ramos fights tonight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Mando Ramos, who fell to obscurity after winning the world lightweight boxing crown at the age of 20, begins a second try at a comeback Wednesday tonight in a 10-round bout against Tony Martinez.

Ramos, 26, comes off a three-round exhibition bout July 16 against Mike Swigar for Wednesday's Strip Fight of the Week.

Ramos captured the lightweight crown Feb. 16, 1969 when he knocked out Carlos Cruz and kept the title for more than a year before being knocked out by Ismael Laguna.

Diamond Bar advances in L.L. playoffs

Davis fires one-hitter

By CRAIG TRAVIS
PB Correspondent

Tommy Davis was not impressed but he was impressive.

The southpaw hurler was faced with his biggest task of the baseball season Tuesday afternoon at Rainey-Schnepp Field in Upland. . .and he rose to the occasion.

The poised 12 year-old fired a one-hitter to pace the Diamond Bar All-Stars to a 3-0 triumph over the Ontario American All-Stars in the semifinals of the Major Division Subsection B Little League playoffs.

Davis, who struck out four of the six batters he faced last Saturday when his team claimed the District 20 title, allowed only a bloop single to Tommy Melton with one out in the fifth inning.

Adding to his performance was the fact that Ontario American had belted 11 home runs and averaged nine runs per game in four balls games while claiming the District 23 crown last week.

Davis was awesome from the pitching rubber. A blazing fastball and quick-moving curve kept Ontario off-stride as evidenced by Davis' 15-strikeout performance.

He struck out the side in the first three innings and two a pair of K's in each of the final three frames. He walked three batters.

O.A. got a chance at Davis in the first inning as Zeke Baltazar and Jose Sandoval each reached base via errors. But Davis struck out the side.

Then in the fourth, Ontario American had Ondra Carter reach on an error, move to second on a walk to Robert Guillen (losing pitcher), but get erased at third on a force out.

In the fifth, Melton's single and a walk to Chuck Maxie put O.A. in scoring position with one out but Davis fanned Hadrian Gallo and Carter. Diamond Bar tallied a pair of unearned runs in the host half of the first inning as Mike Dorning reached on an error. Jim Ligget laid down a bunt and was safe when an attempt for a force at second was too late.

Diamond Bar's final run came in the fourth as Ted Brewster singled to shallow left. Tim Bell's sacrifice bunt advanced Brewster to second. Following a strikeout, Jim Paulson lined a single to left, moving Brewster to third but he was able to score on the play when left-fielder Chuck Maxie threw the ball over the catcher's (Gallo) head.

Diamond Bar will play Ken Hubbs-Colton (District 21) for the Subsection B championship Thursday at 5:30 p.m. at Raney-Schnepp Field, located on 8th St between Mountain and San Antonio avenues.

Police teams shine in L.L. city tourney

It was a banner day for law enforcement Tuesday in the Pomona Little League Major Divison City Playoffs.

Both Pomona Police Association-sponsored teams posted wins in opening day action of the City Tourney. PPA-National posted a 9-5 triumph over Trans Cal Trucking while PPA-Southwest nipped Pomona First Federal 6-5.

PPA-National used a four-run rally in the top of the sixth to record its win. Tom Johnson and Ken Mogeson were the big sticks for the victors with three hits apiece. Johnson had the only extra-base hit of the game, a double, and scored three of the nine PPA-National runs.

PPA-National hurlers combined to fan 10 Trans Cal batters. Reliever Ron Lawson receipted for five of those K's, recording the final five outs via the strikeout route to post the victory.

Ken Jordan had three hits and two runs scored for Trans Cal in a losing cause.

PPA-Southwest used Gabe Rodriguez' three-hit pitching and some sock at the plate supplied by Darrell Gaskin to upend Pomona First Federal.

Rodriguez recorded eight strikeouts and walked only three in going the route for the win. However, it took a triple by Shane Turner in the last of the sixth and a wild pitch to bring across the winning tally for PPA-Southwest.

Gaskin blasted a two-run homer for the winners, one one of only three hits PPA-Southwest recorded. Pomona First Federal hurlers fanned nine batters but surrendered 10 walks and that spelled the difference in the final outcome.

Under the single-elimination tournament rules, Trans Cal Trucking and Pomona First Federal were eliminated from championship play.

Tourney action will resume Thursday with two more first-round games slated for Montvue Park. The ten-team tourney will run through August 7 when the Pomona City Little League champ will be crowned.

Chino enters fray in Pony playoffs

Fresh from its victory in the District 1-Section 4 Pony League Tournament, Chino will go after bigger game starting tonight in Rialto.

The locals will be part of a four-team field in the Section 4 Pony League championships at Lilac Field in Rialto. Chino drew as its first-round opponent Colton. Colton reached the Sectional tourney by copping the Upland Pony League Tournament last week.

The two squads square off in opening-round action tonight at 6 p.m. The Section tourney runs through Sunday and is a double-elimination affair.

The Chino 14-year-olds made it to Rialto by nipping Ontario Pinto 5-4 last Saturday. A four-run rally in the last of the seventh spelled victory for Chino, and that should provide them with plenty of momentum going into tonight's competition.

Chino manager Wayne Bartlow is undecided on who will be his starting hurler tonight but it is leaning toward Darin Stovall. Stovall threw a two-hitter earlier in the playoffs. Ben Almendariz, who also had a successful playoff series in District I action, figures to be Bartlow's number-two starter.

Chino's opponent tonight, Colton, Staged a comeback of its own to capture the Upland Tourney. Needing two wins over host Upland to gain the tourney title and entry into the Sectional playoffs, Colton managed a 7-5 victory on Saturday and a 8-7 triumph on Sunday to advance.

Host city Rialto also will have a team in the Sectionals, as will Pacific of San Bernardino.

Girls' teams reach semis

Only four teams remain as the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department Girls' 12-and-under Softball Tournament enters its semi-final round tonight.

In Tuesday night's action at Ted Greene Park, the Palomares Yankees downed the Westmont Dodgerettes 15-8 while the Simon Chargers defeated the Palomares Blue Sharks 21-16.

Matchups for tonight in the double-elimination tourney feature the Palomares Yankees meeting the Simon Chargers at 5:30 p.m. and the Emerson Wildcats squaring off against the Emerson SuperSonics at 7 p.m. All tourney games are played at Ted Greene.

Jackie White was the winning pitcher for the Yankees Tuesday, while Teresa Chavez posted the hurling victory for the Chargers. Chavez and teammate Rosalyn Jenkins had three hits apiece for the Chargers.

Tourney finals are slated for Friday at 6 p.m.

Colt tourney begins

Action begins tonight in the Colt League Regional Tournament at Memorial Park in Upland. Five teams are slated to do battle in the tourney, which will run through Sunday.

Host team Upland Blue is one of the five squads competing. The Blues will square off against Riverside National tonight at 8:30 p.m. at Memorial as part of tourney-opening doubleheader. In the 6 p.m. first game, Tucson, Arizona will face Claremont of San Diego. The fifth team, Northwest of Garden Grove, has drawn a bye in first-round action.

Two games a night are slated through Saturday, with the tourney finals going on at 5 p.m. Sunday. The winner of the Upland Regional will advance to Santa Clara for Colt League divisional competition, and the winner at Santa Clara will be traveling to Lafayette, Indiana for the Colt League World Series.

RIVERSIDE ENTRANT — Bob Hood, championship motorcyclist, is the first entry in the off-road event at Riverside International Raceway Sept. 6-7. Hood will be driving the buggy.

Monterey race is big one

MONTEREY — With just three road races this year on the American Motorcycle Association's 28 event Grand National Championship Series, the $40,000 plus Monterey Superbike International assumes even more importance for 1975. Scheduled at Laguna Seca Raceway, Monterey, Saturday and Sunday, the race is the first chance that big-money factory teams have had to run their 185 mph road racers in the USA since the Daytona 200 back in March.

Following that race a whole lot of development time has been put in for this second "Camel Pro Series" National Championship road face and both team managers and riders are chafing at the bit to see the results of their efforts in the heat of competition.

Number One favorites for the win at Laguna Seca are undoubtedly the tough Yamaha squad in their "bumble bee" yellow and black livery. Their water-cooled, four cylinder 750cc two-strokes have dominated the American racing scene for two years winning all but one of the 1974 title events plus sweeping to victory in the opening Championship road race of 1975 . . . an incredible record for a bike that is still only in its second year of competition. Leading the Yamaha team is two-time (and current) Grand National Champion, Kenny Roberts of Villa Park, California. Roberts scored an easy win at Laguna last year but most know that the stiffest opposition for a repeat effort will come from his own team-mate, Gene Romero. The San Luis Obispo rider has won the last two AMA Championship road races (Daytona 1975 and Ontario 1974) and knows that he'll be supported by bunches of his home town fans making the 150 mile trip to Monterey to see Gene make it three road race "biggies" in succession.

The Yamaha squad is completed by another near-local, Don Castro from Hollister, California. Kept out of the saddle for most of last year by a severe knee injury, he has underlined his road race prowess with a Daytona Lightweight class win in 1974 plus a fourth place in the Championship event. At Easter in 1975 he tied with Roberts for second place individual honors in England's TransAtlantic Trophy Match Races Series between Great Britain and America.

The man that beat both Roberts and Castro for top honors in that series is the leader of one of Yamaha's toughest rivals, the Suzuki team. He's colorful Chicano, Dave Aldana, from Santa Ana, California who is nicknamed "Rubber Ball" in tribute to the number of times he has survived amazingly spectacular crashes unscathed!

Teaming with Aldana on the Suzuki liquid-cooled three-cylinder racers will be quiet young San Franciscan, Pat Hennen. He lacks Aldana's fireworks but gets solidly on with the job in hand. Another member of the American squad on the TransAtlantic Trophy Series, he underlined his potential with an overall win in New Zealand's Marlborough Championship Series last winter against tough International opposition.

Out for revenge on Hennen for that win will be "down under" visitors to Laguna, John Boote from New Zealand and Warren Willing from Australia on Yamahas plus Australian, Greg Hansford on a factory Kawasaki.

The "Green meanie" Kawasaki team, that dominated Laguna with their lime-green racers two years ago, have switched to watercooling for their 750cc triples and team leader Yvon Du Hamel is out to overcome the bad luck that has constantly dogged his Monterey efforts. In 1972 he crashed heavily on the opening lap; in 1973 he crashed while leading the race with less than a quarter distance to go and in 1974 he crashed in practice but gritted his teeth, had an injured hand pump full of novocaine and chased Kenny Roberts home in second place. If anyone deserves a win it's the tough little (5'4") French Canadian!

The Kawasaki waterpumpers had trouble at Daytona but have since demonstrated terrific speed and lasting qualities in European events. Backing up Du Hamel will be 1975's new man on the team, 23 year old Jim Evans from Bonners Ferry, Idaho but he's only just mended from a broken collarbone and concussion after a race crash in France.

Joining Evans, Greg Hansford and Du Hamel for the Lightweight race will be Ron Pierce, who has been sorting out Kawasaki's novel 250cc two-stroke that features two water-cooled cylinders, one behind the other "in-line" rather than the "across-the frame" configuration generally favored. Ron won the opening round of the Can-Am Challenge Cup at London, New Hampshire, back in June and hopes to break Yamaha's grip on the Lightweight class.

A guy that could well break the Yamaha grip in both categories is current "Camel Pro Series" National Championship points leader, Gary Scott. Harley Davidson team leader, Gary has an all-new superlight 500cc water-pumped twin that has been developed for Grand Prix racing in Europe. He was the only rider to beat Kenny Roberts in Lightweight class racing last year, scoring a win on the 250cc Harley Davidson twin at London, New Hampshire. Now he's aiming to better the second place that he took in last year's Laguna Lightweight race as well as using the superb power-to-weight ratio of the new Grand Prix 500 to put it over on the hefty seven-fifties in the Superbike International.

The ferret is a small, furry animal that is closely related to the weasel.

The black-footed ferret makes its home among the prairie-dog towns on the western Great Plains of the United States.

It is about two feet long, pale buff in color, and its feet and the tip of its tail are black. A black band across its pink eyes looks like a mask.

The black-footed ferret preys on prairie dogs, which it catches by boldly following the victim into its burrow.

It can twist and bend its long, slim body like a snake to enter the prairie-dog hole and often uses the former occupant's home as its own nest.

In some parts of Europe, ferrets are used by hunters to drive wild rabbits and other animals from their burrows.

Today, black-footed ferrets are becoming rare. Since the prairie dog, its main source of food, is quickly disappearing, the black-footed ferret likewise faces possible extinction.

Ragtime set at UCLA

The Classical Ragtime Company will perform in UCLA's Schoenberg Hall at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 22 and 23.

A different show will be presented each evening: an all-instrumental program Aug. 22 and an instrumental and vocal program featuring soprano Maurita "Bunny" Thornburg Aug. 23. Music is by Scott Joplin, Joseph Lamb, Arthur Marshall and Scott Hayden.

The Classical Ragtime Company is made up of pianist Tom Groth, drummer Mike McNerney, banjoist, guitarist and mandolin player Tom Bruner and tubist and string bassist Mort Klanfer. It was founded in 1973.

Broth and McNerney, two experienced musicians, were invited to play for the unveiling in Beverly Hills of a "new" Model A Ford by Classic Cars. Their performance was as well received as the auto. They decided to pursue the study of ragtime — learn its history and hear all the original recordings.

They realized, as classically trained and oriented musicians, that purely academic readings of the rags did not capture the true ragtime flavor. Tempos that are too slow make the rags sound like piano exercises; too fast and the subtleties are lost in pyrotechnics.

Chaffey to stage musical

Chaffey College will present a musical revue, "Summer Musical '75," in the college's Little Theater at 8 p.m. Saturday and at the Starlite Patio Theater, Montclair Civic Center, at the same hour Tuesday. Admission to the Montclair performance is free. Tickets for the Little Theater presentation are $2 for adults, $1.50 for students and children.

The musical, with a cast of more than 35, is produced and directed by C. A. Sheppard of the theater arts department. The first act will be devoted to scenes from musicals the college has produced in the past. The second half is a review of scenes from Broadway's popular rock musicals.

Reservations for the Little Theater presentations can be made at 987-1737, Ext. 322, between noon and 4 p.m. on weekedays.

Shakespeare group to present 'Romeo'

The Los Angeles Free Shakespeare Festival will present "Romeo and Juliet" in the Pilgrimage Theater, Los Angeles, at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Tickets for the preview performance are $10 and are tax-deductible as a donation to the Free Public Theater Foundation, sponsors of the festival.

The production is planned as a memorial for the late Los Angeles councilman, Robert Stevenson. Mayor Tom Bradley and other city and county dignitaries will attend.

After the performance, a buffet will be held at the theater with the audience having an opportunity to meet members of the cast.

Beau Brummels hit British rock mart

By STEPHEN FORD

During the British invasion of the mid-60s it looked as if the American recording industry had reunited with the Mother Country. That was until five Yanks with abundant locks recorded "Laugh, Laugh" and launched the counterinvasion of American rock's new order. They were the Beau Brummels and single after single by the West Coast band nonchalantly rubbed elbows with the British rockers near-monopoly of that era's top 10.

But despite their distinct melodies and harmony, everyone grows old and three years later, the Brummels went their separate routes.

"First we lost John Peterson, our drummer, who split to join Harper's Bizarre," said guitarist Ron Elliot who writes most of the Brummel's songs, "then my diabetes acted up and I couldn't travel with the band anymore. We found a stand-in for me but then he quit and we decided that was the end."

Elliott and vocalist Sal Vanetino continued to play together occasionally when they'd sit in after hours with another band playing at an L.A. club. "And we still sounded good, "Elliott said. "So I tried writing a few new songs, we contacted the other members of the old Brummels and last year, got it together again."

The new Brummels don't sound so terribly different from the old Brummels, but don't consider them another '60s band that regrouped hoping to cash in on the nostalgia craze. Their new LP "Beau Brummels" is a soft rocker in the same style as their earlier material: "We keep our songs very tight, condensed," says Elliott, "none of that 20-minute solo stuff. I think that's selfish. You're not thinking of the fan when you do something like that."

Admirable Crichton

Dreams reel train robbery

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK (NEA) — What a charmer this Edward Pierce is! What a rogue! What cunning and panache!

He masterminds the snatch of the 19th century with the flair of a Florenz Ziegfeld, and coolly lifts 12,000 pounds sterling worth of gold bullion from the fortified train carrying it from London to British troops fighting in the Crimea.

It's a nice bit of a lark for the red-bearded hero of Michael Crichton's new suspense novel, "The Great Train Robbery," and critics have applauded it. (They've even decided Crichton deserves serious consideration now; no longer "just" a writer of entertaining tales.)

But better still is what Crichton himself has done: concocted the affair almost entirely in his head ("I'd read a brief description of a train robbery in Victorian England"), and snaggled several reviewers — including those at the Los Angeles Times and the Boston Globe — into crediting him with a dazzling novel based on court records. (The book's straight-faced introduction serves as tempting bait.)

Crichton, who reconstructed the London of 1855 from picture books, diaries and novels ("I got most of the slang from Dickens"), grins and says, "What I like a lot is that it looks as if it happened."

The master-craftsman is, obviously, as roguish as his hero. And, though taller (eye level with Wilt Chamberlin) and clean-shaven, not unlike him in other ways. Self-possessed, goodlooking — and artful enough to make it difficult to know when he's toying with you.

Reared on Long Island, at 14 he sold a travel article to The New York Times. "It wasn't very good, but they paid me sixty dollars which kept me in model airplanes."

He put himself through Harvard Medical School by writing pulp mysteries. "You were allowed to flunk one course a year, so I'd choose a short one that looked good to blow, like The Kidney, and stay at home for five days and write a book. I always viewed writing as a practical thing, a way to earn money."

But when he reached a "cross-over point where quality became more important than quantity," he decided against medicine and spent his last semester at Harvard writing a novel for his new publisher, Knopf.

It was "The Andromeda Strain." A "respectable enough book," his editor said, but probably not a seller. (The hard-cover edition sold 120,000 copies; the paperback, three million.)

"The Terminal Man" followed, another best-seller ("I never felt I got it right"), and then, the move to Hollywood to write and direct movies because, "I was always more interested in movies than books. There's the chance to make a fictional story more concrete and immediate than you can in a book, and I like the physicalness of it; it's almost like working in plastic."

And he laughs, like Orson Welles said, "Making movies is the greatest set of trains a boy can have."

Stretched in an armchair in a small office at Knopf's, feet up on the desk, looking out over east-side Manhattan, Crichton really is in the catbird seat, isn't he? Only 33, with an enviable list of credits, the respect of the critics and the attention of the public. Perfect, right? Not quite. "Nobody's the way he looks." There are always other realities.

"I'm a chronic depressive, although I'm much more sanguine now. And anyone who decides to devote his time to writing, to spending all that time alone, prefering fantasy to reality," is troubled to begin with.

In his case, there was an unhappy childhood, which he's reluctant to discuss, his own divorce, and those two years after 'Westworld," a film he wrote and directed, when he simply couldn't write.

"It all sounds soap-operaish," he says, dismissing that period with its thoughts of suicide and "fair number" of drunken binges ("I can remember some days having ten martinis at dinner").

"I was exhausted after 'Westworld,' and it's an easy step from audience manipulation to worrying that they'll like and understand what you do. I just became caught up with that attitude and I couldn't decide what to work on next. It was awful. I couldn't stand the thought of sitting at my typewriter all day and not producing anything."

THE SCHNOZZ — This is one of three male elephant seals recently added to the collection of marine animals at Sea World in San Diego. The seals, seven or eight years old, weigh more than 2,000 pounds each and will eventually double that. They were collected off Guadalupe Island, 220 miles south of San Diego.

Tryouts set for chorus

State girl gains Soap Box Derby

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Another driver from Elk Grove, Calif., will compete in the All American Soap Box Derby in Akron this year.

This time it's a girl, Kathy Lewis, 12, and she's no relation to the Elk Grove brothers who won the national event two years in a row.

Kathy won the Central California Soap Box Derby Saturday. She edged second place John Slattery, who was sponsored by the winningest brothers, Bret and Curt Yarborough.

Bret Yarborough won the national finals two years ago. Then last year brother Curt won it, making it the first time in the event's 37 year history that two members of the same family had won.
